SOLDIERS CHECK STRIKERS AFTER NIGHT OF RIOTS

LAWRENCE, Jan. 30.—Two men were bayoneted by soldiers to-day in the big Lawrence strike, and one of them will die. The news of these tragedies aroused the strikers, and it is feared that retaliation is being planned.

Strike Leader Ettor reported the stabbings at the meeting of his strike committee. One of the men, he reported, was stabbed while trying to get into his store. The other, he said, was bayoneted because he would not walk along fast enough in the street.

CONSIDER FOSS' MEDIATION OFFER.

The offer of Governor Foss to mediate the trouble was considered. The committee decided not to consider it or any proposition that did not come from authenticated agents of the mills.

Colonel Sweetser has told them that the militia will not hesitate to shoot from now on. He has forbidden parading and the holding of mass meetings on the Common. The strikers are practically prisoners in their homes, as they are not allowed to collect or loiter in the streets.

When they fully realixe this it is feared there will be another riotous outbreak.

Talk was heard to-day of the arrest of Ettor. He was apareutly not perturbed about it. He boarded a train shortly after 8 o'clock and it was rumored that he had run away. But he turned up in a short time and it was learned that he had only made a trip to South Lawrence. The object of the trip remained a mystery.

Threats were made to-day that South Lawrence would be burned, and that the firemen would be shot while attempting to put out the fire.

Complain of Militia.

At a mass meeting of strikers at strike headquarters during the morning Joseph J. Ettor said, regarding the compromise proposition of Governor Foss, that he will entertain no proposition that does not come directly before the strike committee and that if the strikers accept the Governor's request now they will only break the backbone of the strike.

Complaints of unnecessary roughness on the part of the militia, also of four soldiers and two officers being seen drinking in a saloon were made.

Statement was made that a certain firm of Lawrence contractors is supplying strike-breakers to the mills at $3 a head.

Ettor banged with his gavel for two minutes before he could be heard in the hall, so incensed were the strikers at this statement.

Eight hundred men attended the strikers' meeting, which began at 10:30 and lasted an hour. Ettor presided. When complaints were made of the actions of the militia two cases in particular were given from the viewpoint of the strikers. One striker said:

Grocer is Stabbed.

"John Raimi, who is twenty-one years old and who runs a little grocery store next to his home at No. 352 Elm street, was stabbed in the back by a soldier with a bayonet and is not in a serious condition in the General Hospital. Raimi was making no trouble. He only wanted to get into his grocery. He came up to the store door and was ordered back by four soldiers. He was told to 'clear out.' So he went around the corner of the building to the front door of his home, where he had a right to stay. He was ordered away and when he did not go was stabbed dangerously in the back with a bayonet."

Then another striker reported that Peter Psatko, a Portugese striker, was stabbed in the back with a bayonet while walking on Chestnut street near his home at No. 54 on that street. The soldiers said he did not step along fast enough. He was sent home, as his wound is not serious.

These reports angered the strikers.

Then a striker reported that he saw four soldiers and two officers drinking in a saloon. He said he had names of witnesses to this. The names were taken, to be forwarded with a complaint to Colonel Sweetser or the Mayor.

Ettor's Reply.

After these grievances were recited, Ettor produced a letter from Colonel Sweetser, which notified Ettor that no assembling on streets nor parades would be allowed. Ettor then read a reply he had prepared to send to Colonel Sweetser, as follows:

"There is no intention on my part or on that of the committee to have any parade or meeting on the Common, except what may come out from the necessity of taking a vote on the proposition of the Governor by the operators (mill-men).

"JOSEPH J. ETTOR."

Then Ettor addressed the gathering, saying:

"The soldiers are here to protect the mill owners. Whether you starve or not is a secondary consideration with them. Don't let them scare you by piercing you with bayonets. We are going to win. The strike will last, even when the mill owners bring more militia. He who has power has law. He who has no power has nothing.

"You have not got to go around armed. Just stick together. There are rumors around that I am going to be arrested. Don't worry. If I am arrested I won't be in very long. — — get out all right.

"Remember this, before there is any settlement here the other side has got to make a proposition.

"The Governor wants to settle this strike. He suggests that we go back to work fifty-four hours and receive fifty-six hours pay. This is not official. I will entertain no proposition unless it comes directly before this committee. We have made demands on the other side, but they have not replied. It's up to them. If you accept the Governor's request you will just break the backbone of the strike. If the proposition is made to us, the committee will consider the matter.

Not a Political Fight.

"We can't possibly consider anything unless we have official assurance from the other side. This fight is not a political fight, whether the Mayor or the Governor enter into it or not. Don't worry, I am not gong to leave you, and if I do it will only be for a short time. I will return."

Mr. Ettor intimated that the power-house workers of the I. W. W. might be friends of the strikers, and that the electric cars could possibly be run by the militia.

"We are not anxious to take a policeman's life. That policeman that was stabbed yesterday was only slightly cut," continued Ettor. "Our woman comrade was certainly not shot by one of our own kind."

At this point of the meeting John Joaniti, an Italian delegate of the strikers, brought forth a tumult of applause when he made the motion that the 25,000 strikers form themselves in a parade at the funeral of Annie La Puzza who was shot yesterday.

"Give Decent Burial."

"Our women have been shot in the streets," said Joaniti. "Something should be done to give this woman a decent burial. Let us show the city that 25,000 strikers are muorning their dead, no matter if there are thousands of soldiers here. Let us march behind 25,000 strong and see that our worker is given a burial that she deserves."

The applause lasted three or four minutes. When order was resumed a motion was made and adopted that a committee of five be appointed to make arrangements for the funeral demonstration. Secretary Wheeler said that force had been used and would still be used to win the strike.

"It is the force backed up by the working class of the world that will set you and I free," he said. "Force made the Magna Charta possible. Force was used in the Declaration of Independence. Force raised the flag of revolution at Bunker Hill and, as I said, united class force will win for us. I have been fighting for thirty years against capital and if I am the only one left I am still going to fight this herd of debased parasites."

John Breen, the son of a former Mayor, was arrested for "planting" the dynamite found in Lawrence. He was arraigned in court to-day and held in $2,000 bail. Breen was charged with "conspiring with a person or persons unknown in illegally having dynamite in his possession and placing it at the home of Joseph Assoff, No. 294 Oak street." He is charged on a second count with placing dynamite in the shoe-shop of Urbado de Pratto of No. 76 Lawrence street.

Breen was represented by former Mayor John P. Kane. Breen pleaded not guilty. He asked for a continuance of the case because he is an undertaker and had a funeral to-day.

There were eight people, including two women, arrested for having this dynamite in their possession, one of the men having since been discharged. These prisoners come up in court on Friday and Breen's case was continued until then. Andrew B. Ahern furnished bail for them.

Three Rioters in Court.

EVERETT'S CASE BEFORE FIN. COM.

The Finance Commission, which at the request of Mayor Fitzgerald is considering the work of Building Commissioner Arthur G. Everett and the efficiency of his department, met to-day. Although no definite statement was given out, it is understood that the Everett matter was discussed at length in the course of the meeting. Statements made by different members of the commission during the last few days have led to a belief that within a short time a report on the Everett matter will be made.

Among the buildings to which the attention of the Finance Commission has been called as providing insufficient egress for the inmates in case of fire are those at Nos. 42-50 Chardon street, the paper box factory of Bicknell & Fuller; No. 58-62 Leverett street, a seven-story tenement with stores on the street floor; the building at the corner of Arch, Devonshire and Franklin streets; the building at No. 87 Summer street, No. 67 Chauncy street, and numerous hotels in the city.

Tenement Death Traps.

At the Leverett stret number terrible conditions were found. This building is seven stories high, fronting on both Chambers and Leverett streets, the two sections being divided by a thin wall and with connecting doors. On the ground floor there are half a dozen store rooms, tobacconist shops, furniture store and similar enterprises.

It was estimated that from 150 to 200 people have their homes in the building. The tenements are small and are mostly occupied. When a reporter visited the place the elevators were not in use, one being stalled a few feet above the ground floor and apparently out of order. No attendant was in sight.

About the elevator shaft stairs of wood wind upward to the heights of the building, open all the way up.

The building is absolutely innocent of outside fire escapes. On the southeast side it rises three stories above the adjoining building and presents a blank wall to that side, no windows breaking the monotony or offering a means of egress. On both the Chambers and Leverett street sides, the walls rise without a ledge or break of any kind, except for the small windows, to the roof.

Windows Are Blocked.

On the northwest side there is a narrow court, apparently intended to be occupied by fire escapes. There are none, however, and the windows overlooking the court are blocked by boxes and flower pots put there by the tenants.

In case of a general fire on the ground floor, egress for those above would be absolutely cut off.

The Chardon street building has no outside fire escapes. It is a paper box factory, six stories high. The frontage is about 100 feet. At each end of this frontage twin sets of stairs run down to the street, the outer stair in each case being separated from the inner by a fire wall. The upper story has doors leading out on to the roofs of adjoining buildings. At the back this building has a frontage on Pitts street.

ICEBOUND SHIP IS PULLED FREE

BELFAST, Me., Jan. 30.—The revenue cutter Woodbury has arrived here after pulling the steamer Massasoit out of the ice in Rockport harbor. The Woodbury battered a channel between here and Camden, making only six miles in five hours. The cutter plowed its way through ice which averaged about eight inches, in some places fourteen.

The Woodbury started for Rockland this afternoon, but will attempt to make another channel to Belfast to-morrow.

BRANDEIS ON STEEL LABOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The pitiable conditions of steel trust workers were pictured graphically to-day by Louis D. Brandeis before the Stanley steel committee.

"Workingmen employed in the steel plants in Pittsburg cannot possibly earn sufficient money to give them bare necessities of life," declared Attorney Brandeis. "The Associated Charities of Pittsburg has estimated that $758 yearly is required to purchase the bare necessities of life for a man, wife and three children. Now an employe of the steel mills at 17½ cents an hour, working twelve hours a day, seven days a week, will at the end of a year find himself short of this minimum amount the sum of $1.50. In Chicago, on the other hand, $560 is necessary to sustain such a family, and conditions are better there."

Corrects Farrell.

Before Mr. Brandeis resumed the stand Daniel A. Reed, attorney for the Steel corporation, told the committee he wished to correct for James Farrell, its president, a statement made by Mr. Farrell during his testimony a few days ago. Mr. Farrell had testified that as the result of a boycott the United States Steel Corporation had not sold anything to the International Harvester Company for a period of seven years.

"Mr. Farrell finds," said Attorney Reed, "that in the latter part of 1911 the Carnegie Steel Company sold to the International Harvester Company 34,000 tons of bars, the first transaction between them in seven years.

American labor has been driven from the plants of the steel industry by long hours and lower wages and a system of repression and espionage, not to be generally found outside of Russia, according to Mr. Brandeis.

Contract Labor.

"We have been hearing a lot about tariff which will protect American labor, but the commissioner of labor tells us that sixty per cent. of the steel employes are foreign born, and out of all American labor fourteen per cent. are foreign born."

Mr. Young of Michigan interrupted him, saying:

"Such figures would suggest there is contract labor."

"I don't know," said Brandeis, "but any large employer of labor finds it possible, without entering into violation of the contract labor laws, to attract to his place people who would not otherwise come. The 40 per cent. of Slavs and 20 per cent. of other foreign-born laborers in the steel plant is not an accident."

HIGH SCHOOL HIT BY COST OF LIVING

BROCKTON, Jan. 30.—The high cost of living now hits the pupils at the high school in this city. Up to this time the 1,200 pupils have been enjoying good and ample lunches at a minimum cost. This was made possible because of a surplus in the lunch department treasury. But the high cost of living hit the lunch treasury surplus, too, and it is now exhausted. The result is that there is a material increase in the cost of the lunches served the pupils, and many of them are now forced to bring cold victuals from their homes.

SHOOTS WIFE AND BABY; FIRES HOME

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 30.—John N. Kenefick, formerly a fireman at No. 1 house in this city, went to Collinsville this noon, forced an entrance to the home of Arthur Johnson, father of his wife, shot his wife and month-old baby and then set fire to the house. It is not thought either of his victims is fatally injured.

GOVERNOR HAS POWER TO DECLARE MARTIAL LAW

Article 7, Chapter 2, Section 1 of the State Constitution, treating of the powers of the Governor and enumerating them, reads:

"The Governor of this Commonwealth, for the time being, shall be the commander-in-chief of the army and navy and o fall the military forces of the State by sea and land; and shall have full power by himself, or by and commander, or other officer or officers, from time to time, to train, instruct, exercise and govern the militia and navy; and for the special defence and safety of the Commonwealth, to assemble in martial array, and put in warlike posture, the inhabitants thereof, and to lead and conduct them, and with them to encounter, repel, resist, expel and pursue by force of arms as well by sea as by land, withi nor without the limits of the Commonwealth, and also to kill, slay and destroy, if necessary, and conquer by all fitting ways, enterprises and means whatsoever, all an every such person an persons as shall at any time hereafter in a hostile manner attempt or enterprise the estruction, invasion, detriment or annoyance of this Commonwealth."

CARDINAL'S SHIP NEARING BOSTON

Acting on information received in the latest wireless despatches from Cordinal O'Connell, on board the Canopic, now nearing port, the committee in charge of the monster reception has officially designated noon to-morrow as the time when the procession which is to escort Cardinal O'Connell from the landing at Long Wharf to the Archbishop's house in the Back Bay will start.

Cardinal O'Connell's wireless to Bishop Anderson showed he had received many of the wireless greetings sent from Bostonians.

It appeared to Bishop Anderson that the Cardinal had consulted with Captain Carter of the Canopic as to the time the ship would reach Boston. The wireless, therefore, made the committee-men sure of their grounds as to the reception program.

Should the Canopic be at Quarantine shortly after daylight Wednesday, Cardinal O'Connell will remain aboard and be brought to the White Star Piers in Charlestown. He will be greeted at Quarantine by Bishop Anderson and some members of the reception committee, who will remain with him on the trip up the harbor.

At 10 a. m. about 400 of the reception committee will board a steamer that James M. Prendergast of the committee will provide and go to Charlestown and bring the Cardinal to Long Wharf, where the whole membership of the reception committee and Mayor Fitzgerald will greet him.

TRIES SUICIDE IN THE SUBWAY

A crowd on the platform of the Summer street tunnel station this afternoon saw Francis Brown, fifty-five, a member of a wealthy Lexington family, throw himself in front of a rapidly approaching elevated train.

While scores screamed and covered their eyes to shut out the scene, the motorman, throwing on the full force of the air brake, succeeded in stopping his train just a few feet from the prostrate man.

Nobody noticed Brown when he entered the station, and he was lost among the shoppers who throng the Summer street station at that time. When he train come in sight Brown horrified the crowd by rushing across the platform, jostling women and children as he went, and plunging head foremost into the deep track pit.

Everybody was too startled to leap to the man's rescue and he lay, stretched out, face downward as the train rushed into the station.

Some men on the platform jumped into the pit and dragged Brown out. A special officer of the Elevated took charge of him and turned him over to policemen who were attracted to the station by the uproar.

When the police uestioned him they discovered that the man was demented. He talked incoherently and could not tell why he had attempted suicide. At the City Hall avenue police station Brown gave his name and said that he lived at No. 41 Carey road, Lexington. The Elevated authorities, who made an investigation, said that his home was at No. 41 Purcey road, Lexington.

URGE BILL FOR BETTER WALKS

William C. Ewing, president of the United Improvement Association, declared to-day at a hearing before the Committee on Cities at the State House that the sidewalks of Boston were in a disgraceful condition. The hearing was held on a bill presented by Mayor Fitzgerald which provides that the superintendent of streets under the direction of the mayor shall construct each year for the next ten years, at least five and not more than ten miles of sidewalks.

Mr. Ewing favored the bill. He said that if the bill is adopted it will automatically provide for the improvement of sidewalks. Judge Joseph J. Corbett, assistant corporation counsel, spoke in favor of the bill. At his request the hearing was continued.

SUMMON MORRISON IN DYNAMITE CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Subpoenas today were served on Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor and Henry H. Flather, cashier of the Riggs National Bank, the depository of the Federation's funds and of the McNamara defence fund, calling upon them to appear on February 1 before the Federal Grand Jury which is investigating the dynamite plots in Indianapolis.

FOUR RESCUED IN WEST END FIRE

Four persons were rescued from suffocation and fifty boxes of imported cigarettes were found in the walls during a $700 fire to-day in the five-story brick dwelling house at No. 4 Ashburton place, which runs from Somerset to Bowdoin streets, West End.

Mrs. Harry W. Lake and her two-and-one-half-year-old baby live on the fifth floor. When the smoke filled the hallway they were afraid to come down stairs. Charles Burroughs, a janitor in a building opposite, rescued them.

Mrs. Carrie Tinkham, who occupies a suite on the fourth floor, made her way to the roof and escaped by crawling on her hands and knees to an adjoining building, where she was assisted to the street by neighbors. Mrs. Elizabeth West was also assisted down the stairs. She was overcome by smoke.

The fire started on the ground floor in the rear of a room occupied by the Phi Delta Phi, a college fraternity, and spread along the walls to the partitions. It was discovered by Frank Weaver, the engineer who tends the furnace and steam in the building. He hurried to the Boston University Law School next door and sent in a call to fire headquarters.

While the firemen were tearing down the partition on one of the floors they came across the cigarettes. How long they were hid there by whom is a mystery. The fire interfered with the studies of the law students, and the clanging of the fire bells drove many of the legislators at the State House, nearby, into the street to see the firemen work.

JAILED SIX MONTHS FOR LARCENY OF $2

Christopher Walgreen of Dorchester was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in the Charlestown Police Court to-day for stealing $2 from Chin Toy, a laundryman on Bartlett street, Charlestown. Walgreen had a police record. On January 20 he called at Toy's laundry, representing himself as a tax collector. He was successful and called again yesterday and demanded $2 more. Instead of giving him the $2, Chin got an ax and chased Walgreen out of the laundry. He chased him nearly a half a mile, and was finally successful in catching him, with the aid of a crowd that followed.

HOST SERVES $100 BILLS AT BANQUET

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 30.—Robert Meyerhoff, a retired business man of large means, for eighteen years a resident of Atlantic City, celebrated the seventy-eighth anniversary of his birth. "This is going to be a family affair," he said to the proprietor of the Hotel Beaumont in ordering a dinner for fourteen. "Give me the best the house has. What do I want? You know better than I do. I haven't time to bother my head with such details. You do it." But the guests found $100 bills concealed in the napkins at their plates, the gift of Mr. Meyerhoff.

ROGERS TO WAGE WAR IN AIR ON ITALIANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Frank Rogers, a young aviator, who flies a biplane owned by Peter McLaughlin of Mineola, is preparing to go to Turkey with his craft to operate as an aerial soldier against the Italians in the war at Tripoli. Rogers is a citizen of Washington. He was enlisted in the Turkish service through a foreign agency which advertised in many of the French and German aviation magazines. He expects to leave for Turkey this week.

BOSTON-1915 ENDS AS TASK IS FINISHED

Boston—1915 has, with the accomplishment of what it set out to achieve, been discontinued as a separate organization. The executive committee of the organization has decided, after several months' long survey of the situation, that the program originally suggested has been carried through, that the co-operation and co-ordination of the many organizations in the metropolitan district has been issured, and the directors decided to disband.

INTERVENTION AGAIN DEMANDED IN CUBA

HAVANA, Jan. 30.—Foreign interests in Cuba have made another appeal to the United States government for intervention, it was learned to-day, as a result of socialistic agitation for a general strike. Planters declare that the Cuban government cannot cope with the labor situation, and that vast crops of cane are going to waste because they cannot be harvested.

Who Are the Twenty Greatest Men?

Mr. Carnegie, Mr. Stead and a Committee Have Selected Their List of Twenty. Nobody Living Now Can Possibly Name the Real Twenty. Nineteen of Them Perhaps Are Not in the List as Published.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

You have listened to talk of "the twenty greatest men."

Stead of London, associated with thirty men of intelligence and education, has made up a list of twenty. Here it is:

SHAKESPEARE, greatest of modern poets.
COLUMBUS, discoverer of the American world.
GUTENBURG, inventor of typography.
NEWTON, founder of modern astronomy and physics.
JULIUS CAESAR, founder of the Roman Empire.
DARWIN, founder of new science.
DANTE, father of modern poetry.
STEPHENSON, inventor of locomotive.
MICHAEL ANGELO, painter, sculptor.
FRANKLIN, discoverer of electric forces.
ABRAHAM LINCOLN.
WATT, inventor of steam power machines.
MOSES, early theocratic civilization.
HOMER, ancient poetry.
BUDDHA, founder of Buddhism.
ARISTOTLE, ancient philosophy.
SOCRATES, Athenian philosopher.
ST. PAUL, Apostle of Christianity.
CONFUCIUS, Chinese philosopher.
LUTHER.

It is hard to say definitely, truthfully or positively that one man is greater than another.

You might as well say that a pound of butter is greater than a yard of silk. There is no basis of comparison possible. A pound of butter is one thing and a yard of silk is another.

Among the men that the world calls great the differences are infinitely more marked than the difference between butter and silk, or between hydrogen gas and humming birds.

All lists have the name of Shakespeare—that is inevitable. He beyond question is the greatest genius that the world has seen in the way of unconscious, spontaneous expression of emotion, and especially of ambition.

The list above includes the name of Aristotle and leaves out the name of Archimedes.

These men are as far apart intellectually as the poles. But to mention one of them and leave out the other is as ridiculous as it would be to mention the South Pole and leave out the North Pole in enumerating the important points on the surface of the globe.

Aristotle gave to men a method of philosophical investigation—now discarded. He taught them to think and to classify their knowledge. Archimedes did so much for science that for a thousand years after his death it may truly be said that no man added to his knowledge in his special line.

Socrates is mentioned and Plato is left out. If it were not for Plato, the world would know little about Socrates. Socrates lives because Plato, his student and admirer, wrote about him, and it is doubtful, indeed, whether there is much of Socrates and not nearly all of Plato's mind in what we attribute to Socrates generally, especially his very plucky death.

To mention Julius Caesar and leave out Alexander in a list of the world's twenty greatest men is confusing. Alexander was greater than Caesar as a fighter. Caesar was greater than Alexander as a politician.

The use of a soldier in the old days was the killing off of the ignorant and the turning over of the land to those that knew more and the spreading of knowledge in ignorant regions.

Alexander did more than Caesar to spread knowledge in this world. He was in that way a greater man.

The list of twenty includes Dante, the great Italian poet, and Homer, the great Greek, and the list should include them. Shakespeare, Dante and Homer unquestionably are the three greatest writers that ever lived.

But the mind has forms of expression other than words, and a list that mentions the three great users of words and leaves out the great musician, Beethoven, is lacking.

Lists of greatest men and greatest books are useful principally because they make human beings think of men that have done good work and take an interest in books that represent the work.

No list can be complete.

If you want to do something interesting to yourself, and useful, make sure that you really know and understand the work done by the twenty men in this list. And then make up another list of ten or of five from the twenty; get your friends to do the same, and see how nearly your judgment agrees.

In the first place you must define the word "great" before you begin enumerating those that are great.

If courage is greatness, then put Alexander at the top of your list, or Caesar, or some other fighter.

If increasing human possessions is greatness, then put Columbus at the top.

If bringing man in harmony with the universe around him and enabling him to understand the laws that rule infinite space and matter be true greatness, then give the first place to Newton, who discovered the law of gravitation.

If it be true that the most important task of man is to understand himself and the progress of the animal world to which he belongs, then put Darwin at the top.

If beauty of form and color is the most important thing in the world, then give the first place to Michael Angelo, for he is the king of beauty and of dignity in painting, in sculpture and in architecture.

Read over these names, think what they mean—AND ESPECIALLY MAKE SURE THAT YOU UNDERSTAND WHAT THESE MEN HAVE DONE—AND YOUR TIME WILL NOT BE WASTED.

GOOD MORNING, MR. SHERLOCKO. OUR HOUSE HAS BEEN ROBBED! COME QUICK!
THERE IS NO TIME TO BE LOST! COME TO THE HOUSE!
THEY EVEN TOOK THE WATCH OUT OF MY POCKET!
BY THE WAY, HAVE YOU A MATCH?
SURE!
COME WATSO, THROW OFF YOUR DISGUISE! GREATER MINDS THAN YOURS HAVE FAILED TO HOAX ME!
HOW DID YOU EVER GUESS?
SIMPLE, WATSO — WHEN YOU CAME IN YOU TRIED TO TIP YOUR HAT — YOU STOOD WITH YOUR BACK TO THE MIRROR, WHICH A WOMAN NEVER DOES — AND NO WOMAN CARRIES A WATCH IN HER VEST POCKET — YOUR RESPONSE TO MY REQUEST FOR MATCHES SETTLED THE MATTER!
MARVELOUS!

The Ballads of Bill

By DAMON RUNYON

THE SHADE OF THE SAGE.

THE shade of that sage of sages who said in the long ago,
"A sucker is born each minute," sat in a ghostly haze
Viewing the Spenders passing with all their front and show.
And he mused: "Well, they haven't altered from the olden, golden days!"
And the Seeker of Truth said: "Mister, what age is the Age of Know?
You, in your ghostly wisdom, have the answer to that, I'm sure.
When do they take their tumble, when do they play it slow—
Tell me, oh Shade of the Wise Man, tell we what is the cure?"

And the shade of the sage said: Listen!" while his face wore a look of scorn—
"They'll stay that way till the golden day when Gabriel toots his horn!"

The shade of the sage of sages listened in deep amaze
As the Con Man peddled the State House to a farmer from Boobville, O.;
And he heard a promoter pushing his stock in the old-time ways—
While the things he read in the papers were the things that he used to know.
And the Seeker of Truth said: "Hadji, what does experience teach?
When is the Sucker a Wise Man, able to smile on it all?
When is he free from folly, and out of the grafter's reach?
What is the Age of Reason and when is he safe from a fall?"

And the shade of the sage said: "Listen!" while his face wore a look of scorn—
"They'll stay that way till the golden day when Gabriel toots his horn!"

The shade of the sage of sages sat in a gilt cafe
Watching the folks about him as they opened their pockets wide,
And he mused: "It's the same old story as back in that other day—
The census will never be lowered from Sucker race suicide!"
And the Seeker of Truth said: "Father, when is a man past guile?
What is the Age of Caution, and the time for a thought or two?
When is the purse hand palsied from wine or a siren smile?
Tell me, oh Shade of the Wise Man, when is the Sucker through?"

And the shade of the sage said: "Listen!" as he looked with his look of scorn—
"They'll stay that way till the golden day when Gabriel toots his horn!"

He Writes About Eating Right

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

MA is all the time bringing funny folks up to the house & last nite she brought up sum ladies wich has made up a new club, thay call themselfs the Provender Peepul. It is a club that is made up of gurls that likes to eat & eat right.

Pa likes to eat, too, but he likes to eat moar at nite than he does in the daytime. Pa always sed that enny body can eet in the morning, but it takes a hero to wait until nite.

Well, the ladies all cum up to the house, & Ma interduced them to me & Pa. These gurls is here, Ma sed, to spread the gospel of good cooking. The way you have been cooking laitly, sed Pa, yure frends will sure have a grand mission. The ham that you cooked for me the other morning was as much like real ham as the pitching arm of Rube Waddell is like the pitching arm of Christy Mathewson.

I do not follow you, sed Ma, & neether do my friends follow you. What do you mean?

Well, sed Pa, I will explain. Rube Waddell is a left-hander & Matty is a right-hander. I used it for allegory, Pa sed. I wanted to show that you gurls aren't the only folks that can git together & give yure brains a bit of exercise.

I am going to show you, Ma sed, that the gurls heer gathered is the britest minds that was evver gathered together in Boston. One of them quit her husband & went to be a milliner, sed Ma, & it served her husband rite. He was only a tipewriter salesman, sed Ma, & all he cud evver say to her was if you need a new ribbon for yure hat, be sure to mark it indelibel. But I digress, Ma sed. This is the bunch of gurls that wants to meet you so bad. We want to tell you our new rules wich we have made up for our club, the Provender Peepul.

Fire away, Pa sed, & this is wat Ma sed:

Rule I. Doant feed yure husband oat meal. He mite get stingy, like Harry Lauder.

Rule II. Doant give yure husband any mince pie. Husbands shud not be humored.

Rule III. Doant pour yure husband's coffee in his cup. Let him pour it on the tabel cloth.

Rule IV. Doant eat yure napkin ring. Keep it for a souvenir.

Wife, sed Pa, yure are a quaint comedian.

I have did one funny thing, sed Ma, I have married you.

Only the actions of the just
Smell sweet and blossom in the dust.

Coast Women Have Proved Worthy of Ballot

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

WHEN California a few months ago gave women the right of suffrage, the male wits of that State dusted off old jokes about hand-painted ballots and crocheted-bordered ballot boxes, and shook them at the women's faces.

Then, being men who are fond of their wit, they laughed merrily, and were in quite a good humor for several days.

A few weeks later Los Angeles had a municipal election, and with the merry laughter of the male wits still ringing in their ears seventy-five thousand women went to the polls.

It was a woman's election. That is, more than half the votes were cast by women, so that the result is their work rather than men's work.

Before they went to the polls they didn't prepare for their first contribution to municipal control by standing on street corners talking loudly and spitting tobacco generously.

They studied the needs of the city, its outlook, its handicaps, and its evils. They gave their votes the united intelligence of seventy-five thousand women, and the result is the election of the best men for the places in that city's history.

This boast is not made by the women. It is made by men who were prejudiced to giving women this right and who have been won over by the superior intelligence of the women and the decency of the result.

The testimony showed that they evinced more interest than the men; that they worked harder for their preferred candidates; that they informed themselves on the questions presented, and that their conduct at the polls was womanly.

What has been done in California will be done elsewhere when women are no longer classed with idiots, criminals and babies.

If woman hasn't enough intelligence to vote, then no man has, for the best in him he inherits from her.

If she is fit to be trusted with bringing up his children, she has brain enough to cast a vote which is a matter requiring infinite less ability.

The seventy-five thousand women of Los Angeles did more than secure an improved city administration. They proved that when a woman is given a responsibility she is equal to it.

There is only one thing that resembles crocheting which the male wits who oppose suffrage need fear: That Time is knitting a pattern in and out of their brains that looks dangerously like a cobweb.

SOLDIERS CHECK STRIKERS AFTER NIGHT OF RIOTS

LAWRENCE, Jan. 30.—Two men were bayoneted by soldiers to-day in the big Lawrence strike, and one of them will die. The news of these tragedies aroused the strikers, and it is feared that retaliation is being planned.

Strike Leader Ettor reported the stabbings at the meeting of his strike committee. One of the men, he reported, was stabbed while trying to get into his store. The other, he said, was bayoneted because he would not walk along fast enough in the street.

CONSIDER FOSS' MEDIATION OFFER.

The offer of Governor Foss to mediate the trouble was considered. The committee decided not to consider it or any proposition that did not come from authenticated agents of the mills.

Colonel Sweetser has told them that the militia will not hesitate to shoot from now on. He has forbidden parading and the holding of mass meetings on the Common. The strikers are practically prisoners in their homes, as they are not allowed to collect or loiter in the streets.

When they fully realize this it is feared there will be another riotous outbreak.

Talk was heard to-day of the arrest of Ettor. He was apparently not perturbed about it. He boarded a train shortly after 8 o'clock and it was rumored that he had run away. But he turned up in a short time and it was learned that he had only made a trip to South Lawrence. The object of the trip remained a mystery.

Threats were made today that South Lawrence would be burned, and that the firemen would be shot while attempting to put out the fire.

Complain of Militia.

At a mass meeting of strikers at strike headquarters during the morning Joseph J. Ettor said, regarding the compromise proposition of Governor Foss, that he will entertain no proposition that does not come directly before the strike committee and that if the strikers accept the Governor's request now they will only break the backbone of the strike.

Complaints of unnecessary roughness on the part of the militia, also of four soldiers and two officers being seen drinking in a saloon were made.

Statement was made that a certain firm of Lawrence contractors is supplying strike breakers to the mills at $3 a head.

Ettor banged with his gavel for two minutes before he could be heard in the hall, so incensed were the strikers at this statement.

Three hundred men attended the strikers' meeting which began at 10:30 and lasted an hour. Ettor presided. When complaints were made of the actions of the militia two cases in particular were given from the viewpoint of the strikers. One striker said:

Grocer is Stabbed.

"John Rami, who is twenty-one years old and who runs a little grocery store next to his home at No. 152 Elm street, was stabbed in the back by a soldier with a bayonet and is not in a serious condition in the General Hospital. Rami was looking for trouble. He only wanted to get into his grocery. He came up to the store door and was ordered back by four soldiers. He was told to 'clear out.' So he went around the corner of the building to the front door of his home, where he had a right to stay. He was ordered away and when he did not go was stabbed dangerously in the back with a bayonet."

Then another striker reported that Peter Paulin, a Portugese striker, was stabbed in the back with a bayonet while walking on Chestnut street near his home at No. 54 on that street. The soldiers said he did not step along fast enough. He was sent home, as his wound is not serious.

These reports angered the strikers.

Then a striker reported that he saw four soldiers and two officers drinking in a saloon. He said he had names of witnesses to this. The names were taken to be forwarded with a complaint to Colonel Sweetser or the Mayor.

Ettor's Reply.

After these grievances were [illegible] Ettor produced a letter from Colonel Sweetser which notified Ettor that no assembling on streets nor parades would be allowed. Ettor then read a reply he had prepared to send to Colonel Sweetser, as follows:

"There is no intention on my part or on that of the committee to have any parade or meeting on the Common except what may come out from the necessity of taking a vote on the proposition of the Governor by the operators [illegible].

"JOSEPH J. ETTOR."

Then Ettor addressed the gathering, saying:

"The soldiers are here to protect the mill owners. Whether you starve or not is a secondary consideration with them. Don't let them scare you by pricking you with bayonets. We are going to win. The strike will last, even when the mill owners bring more militia. He who has power has law. He who has no power has nothing.

"You have not got to go around armed. Just stick together. There are rumors around that I am going to be arrested. Don't worry. If I am arrested I won't be in very long. [illegible] get out all right.

"Remember this before there is any settlement here the other side has got to make a proposition.

"The Governor wants to settle this strike. He suggests that we go back to work fifty-four hours and receive fifty-six hours pay. This is not official. I will entertain no proposition unless it comes directly before this committee. We have made demands on the other side, but they have not replied. It's up to them. If you accept the Governor's request you will just break the backbone of the strike. If the proposition is made to us, the committee will consider the matter.

Not a Political Fight.

"We can't possibly consider anything unless we have official assurance from the other side. This fight is not a political fight, whether the Mayor or the Governor enter into it or not. Don't worry, I am not going to leave you, and if I do it will only be for a short time. I will return."

Mr. Ettor intimated that the powerhouse workers of the I. W. W. might be friendly of the strikers, and that the electric cars could possibly be run by the militia.

"We are not anxious to take a policeman's life. That policeman that was stabbed yesterday was only slightly cut," continued Ettor. "Our woman comrade was certainly not shot by one of our own kind."

At this point of the meeting John Joanili, an Italian delegate of the strikers, brought forth a tumult of applause when he made the motion that the 25,000 strikers form themselves in a parade at the funeral of Annie La Pizza who was shot yesterday.

"Give Decent Burial."

"Our women have been shot in the streets," said Joanili. "Something should be done to give this woman a decent burial. Let us show the city that 25,000 strikers are mourning their dead, no matter if there are thousands of soldiers here. Let us march behind 25,000 strong and see that our worker is given a burial that she deserves."

The applause lasted three or four minutes. When order was resumed a motion was made and adopted that a committee of five be appointed to make arrangements for the funeral demonstration. Secretary Wheeler said that force had been used and would still be used to win the strike.

"It is the force backed up by the working class of the world that will let you and I free," he said. "Force made the Magna Charta possible. Force was used in the Declaration of Independence. Force raised the flag of revolution at Bunker Hill and, as I said, united class force will win for us. I have been fighting for thirty years against capital and if I am the only one left I am still going to fight this herd of debased parasites."

John Breen, the son of a former Mayor, was arrested for "planting" the dynamite found in Lawrence. He was arraigned in court today and held in $2,000 bail. Breen was charged with "conspiring with a person or persons unknown to illegally having dynamite in his possession and placing it at the home of Joseph Assoff, No. 294 Oak street." He is charged on a second count with placing dynamite in the shoe shop of [illegible] de Pratto of No. 76 Lawrence street.

Breen was represented by former Mayor John P. Kane. Breen pleaded not guilty. He asked for a continuance of the case because he is an undertaker and had a funeral today.

There were eight people, including two women, arrested for having this dynamite in their possession, one of the men having since been discharged. These prisoners come up in court on Friday and Breen's case was continued until then. Andrew H. Abern furnished bail for them.

Three Rioters in Court.

Three men arrested in connection with the strike were, besides Breen, arraigned before Associate Justice Chandler. Michael Sardig was caught in the riot in which

EVERETT'S CASE BEFORE FIN. COM.

The Finance Commission, which at the request of Mayor Fitzgerald is considering the work of Building Commissioner Arthur G. Everett and the efficiency of his department, met to-day. Although no definite statement was given out, it is understood that the Everett matter was discussed at length in the course of the meeting. Statements made by different members of the commission during the last few days have led to a belief that within a short time a report on the Everett matter will be made.

Among the buildings to which the attention of the Finance Commission has been called as providing insufficient egress for the inmates in case of fire are those at Nos. 42-50 Chardon street, the paper box factory of Bicknell & Fuller; No. 58-62 Leverett street, a seven-story tenement with stores on the street floor; the building at the corner of Arch, Devonshire and Franklin streets; the building at No. 87 Summer street, No. 67 Chauncy street, and numerous hotels in the city.

Tenement Death Traps.

At the Leverett street number terrible conditions were found. This building is seven stories high, fronting on both Chambers and Leverett streets, the two sections being divided by a thin wall and with connecting doors. On the ground floor there are half a dozen store rooms, tobacconist shops, furniture store and similar enterprises.

It was estimated that from 150 to 200 people have their homes in the building. The tenements are small and are mostly occupied. When a reporter visited the place the elevators were not in use, one being stalled a few feet above the ground floor and apparently out of order. No attendant was in sight.

About the elevator shaft stairs of wood wind upward to the heights of the building, open all the way up.

The building is absolutely innocent of outside fire escapes. On the southeast side it rises three stories above the adjoining building and presents a blank wall to that side, no windows breaking the monotony or offering a means of egress. On both the Chambers and Leverett street sides, the walls rise without a ledge or break of any kind, except for the small windows, to the roof.

Windows Are Blocked.

On the northwest side there is a narrow court, apparently intended to be occupied by fire escapes. There are none, however, and the windows overlooking the court are blocked by boxes and flower pots put there by the tenants.

In case of a general fire on the ground floor, egress for those above would be absolutely cut off.

The Chardon street building has no outside fire escapes. It is a paper box factory, six stories high. The frontage is about 100 feet. At each end of this frontage twin sets of stairs run down to the street, the outer stair in each case being separated from the inner by a fire wall. The upper story has doors leading out on to the roofs of adjoining buildings. At the back this building has a frontage on Pitts street.

ICEBOUND SHIP IS PULLED FREE

BELFAST, Me., Jan. 30.—The revenue cutter Woodbury has arrived here after pulling the steamer Massasoit out of the ice in Rockport harbor. The Woodbury battered a channel between here and Camden, making only six miles in five hours. The cutter plowed its way through ice which averaged about eight inches, in some places fourteen.

The Woodbury started for Rockland this afternoon, but will attempt to make another channel to Belfast to-morrow.

BRANDEIS ON STEEL LABOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The pitiable conditions of steel trust workers were pictured graphically to-day by Louis D. Brandeis before the Stanley steel committee.

"Workingmen employed in the steel plants in Pittsburg cannot possibly earn sufficient money to give them bare necessities of life," declared Attorney Brandeis. "The Associated Charities of Pittsburg has estimated that $758 yearly is required to purchase the bare necessities of life for a man, wife and three children. Now an employe of the steel mills at 17½ cents an hour, working twelve hours a day, seven days a week, will at the end of a year find himself short of this minimum amount the sum of $1.50. In Chicago, on the other hand, $560 is necessary to sustain such a family, and conditions are better there."

Corrects Farrell.

Before Mr. Brandeis resumed the stand Daniel A. Reed, attorney for the Steel corporation, told the committee he wished to correct for James Farrell, its president, a statement made by Mr. Farrell during his testimony a few days ago. Mr. Farrell had testified that as the result of a boycott the United States Steel Corporation had not sold anything to the International Harvester Company for a period of seven years.

"Mr. Farrell finds," said Attorney Reed, "that in the latter part of 1911 the Carnegie Steel Company sold to the International Harvester Company 34,000 tons of bars, the first transaction between them in seven years.

American labor has been driven from the plants of the steel industry by long hours and lower wages and a system of repression and espionage, not to be generally found outside of Russia, according to Mr. Brandeis.

Contract Labor.

"We have been hearing a lot about tariff which will protect American labor, but the commissioner of labor tells us that sixty per cent. of the steel employes are foreign born, and out of all American labor fourteen per cent. are foreign born."

Mr. Young of Michigan interrupted him, saying:

"Such figures would suggest there is contract labor."

"I don't know," said Brandeis, "but any large employer of labor finds it possible, without entering into violation of the contract labor laws, to attract to his place people who would not otherwise come. The 40 per cent. of Slavs and 20 per cent. of other foreign-born laborers in the steel plant is not an accident."

HIGH SCHOOL HIT BY COST OF LIVING

BROCKTON, Jan. 30.—The high cost of living now hits the pupils at the high school in this city. Up to this time the 1,200 pupils have been enjoying good and ample lunches at a minimum cost. This was made possible because of a surplus in the lunch department treasury. But the high cost of living hit the lunch treasury surplus, too, and it is now exhausted. The result is that there is a material increase in the cost of the lunches served the pupils, and many of them are now forced to bring cold victuals from their homes.

SHOOTS WIFE AND BABY; FIRES HOME

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 30.—John N. Keneflck, formerly a fireman at No. 1 house in this city, went to Collinsville this noon, forced an entrance to the home of Arthur Johnson, father of his wife, shot his wife and month-old baby and then set fire to the house. It is not thought either of his victims is fatally injured.

GOVERNOR HAS POWER TO DECLARE MARTIAL LAW

Article 7, Chapter 2, Section 1 of the State Constitution, treating of the powers of the Governor and enumerating them, reads:

"The Governor of this Commonwealth, for the time being, shall be the commander-in-chief of the army and navy and of all the military forces of the State by sea and land; and shall have full power by himself, or by and commander, or other officer or officers, from time to time, to train, instruct, exercise and govern the militia and navy; and for the special defence and safety of the Commonwealth, to assemble in martial array, and put in warlike posture, the inhabitants thereof, and to lead and conduct them, and with them to encounter, repel, resist, expel and pursue by force of arms as well by sea as by land, within nor without the limits of the Commonwealth, and also to kill, slay and destroy, if necessary, and conquer by all fitting ways, enterprises and means whatsoever, all an every such person an persons as shall at any time hereafter in a hostile manner attempt or enterprise the estruction, invasion, detriment or annoyance of this Commonwealth."

CARDINAL'S SHIP NEARING BOSTON

Acting on information received in the latest wireless despatches from Cardinal O'Connell, on board the Canopic, now nearing port, the committee in charge of the monster reception has officially designated noon to-morrow as the time when the procession which is to escort Cardinal O'Connell from the landing at Long Wharf to the Archbishop's house in the Back Bay will start.

Cardinal O'Connell's wireless to Bishop Anderson showed he had received many of the wireless greetings sent from Bostonians.

It appeared to Bishop Anderson that the Cardinal had consulted with Captain Carter of the Canopic as to the time the ship would reach Boston. The wireless, therefore, made the committee-men sure of their grounds as to the reception program.

Should the Canopic be at Quarantine shortly after daylight Wednesday, Cardinal O'Connell will remain aboard and be brought to the White Star Piers in Charlestown. He will be greeted at Quarantine by Bishop Anderson and some members of the reception committee, who will remain with him on the trip up the harbor.

At 10 a. m. about 400 of the reception committee will board a steamer that James M. Prendergast of the committee will provide and go to Charlestown and bring the Cardinal to Long Wharf, where the whole membership of the reception committee and Mayor Fitzgerald will greet him.

TRIES SUICIDE IN THE SUBWAY

A crowd on the platform of the Summer street tunnel station this afternoon saw Egmels Brown, fifty-five, a member of a wealthy Lexington family, throw himself in front of a rapidly approaching elevated train.

While scores screamed and covered their eyes to shut out the scene, the motorman, throwing on the full force of the air brake, succeeded in stopping his train just a few feet from the prostrate man.

Nobody noticed Brown when he entered the station, and he was lost among the shoppers who throng the Summer street station at that time. When the train came in sight Brown horrified the crowd by rushing across the platform, jostling women and children as he went, and plunging head foremost into the deep track pit.

Everybody was too startled to leap to the man's rescue and he lay, stretched out, face downward as the train rushed into the station.

Some men on the platform jumped into the pit and dragged Brown out. A special officer of the Elevated took charge of him and turned him over to policemen who were attracted to the station by the uproar.

When the police questioned him they discovered that the man was demented. He talked incoherently and could not tell why he had attempted suicide. At the City Hall avenue police station Brown gave his name and said that he lived at No. 41 Carey road, Lexington. The Elevated authorities, who made an investigation, said that his home was at No. 41 Percey road, Lexington.

URGE BILL FOR BETTER WALKS

William C. Ewing, president of the United Improvement Association, declared to-day at a hearing before the Committee on Cities at the State House that the sidewalks of Boston were in a disgraceful condition. The hearing was held on a bill presented by Mayor Fitzgerald which provides that the superintendent of streets under the direction of the mayor shall construct each year for the next ten years, at least five and not more than ten miles of sidewalks.

Mr. Ewing favored the bill. He said that if the bill is adopted it will automatically provide for the improvement of sidewalks. Judge Joseph J. Corbett, assistant corporation counsel, spoke in favor of the bill. At his request the hearing was continued.

SUMMON MORRISON IN DYNAMITE CASE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Subpoenas today were served on Secretary Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor and Henry H. Flather, cashier of the Riggs National Bank, the depository of the Federation's funds and of the McNamara defence fund, calling upon them to appear on February 1 before the Federal Grand Jury which is investigating the dynamite plots in Indianapolis.

FOUR RESCUED IN WEST END FIRE

Four persons were rescued from suffocation and fifty boxes of imported cigarettes were found in the walls during a $700 fire today in the five-story brick dwelling house at No. 4 Ashburton place, which runs from Somerset to Bowdoin streets, West End.

Mrs. Harry W. Lake and her two-and-one-half-year-old baby live on the fifth floor. When the smoke filled the hallway they were afraid to come down stairs. Charles Burroughs, a janitor in a building opposite, rescued them.

Mrs. Carrie Tinkham, who occupies a suite on the fourth floor, made her way to the roof and escaped by crawling on her hands and knees to an adjoining building, where she was assisted to the street by neighbors. Mrs. Elizabeth West was also assisted down the stairs. She was overcome by smoke.

The fire started on the ground floor in the rear of a room occupied by the Phi Delta Phi, a college fraternity, and spread along the walls to the partitions. It was discovered by Frank Weaver, the engineer who tends the furnace and steam in the building. He hurried to the Boston University Law School next door and sent in a call to fire headquarters.

While the firemen were tearing down the partition on one of the floors they came across the cigarettes. How long they were hid there by whom is a mystery. The fire interfered with the studies of the law students, and the clanging of the fire bells drove many of the legislators at the State House, nearby, into the street to see the firemen work.

JAILED SIX MONTHS FOR LARCENY OF $2

Christopher Walgreen of Dorchester was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction in the Charlestown Police Court to-day for stealing $2 from Chin Toy, a laundryman on Bartlett street, Charlestown. Walgreen had a police record. On January 20 he called at Toy's laundry, representing himself as a tax collector. He was successful and called again yesterday and demanded $2 more. Instead of giving him the $2, Chin got an ax and chased Walgreen out of the laundry. He chased him nearly a half a mile, and was finally successful in catching him, with the aid of a crowd that followed.

HOST SERVES $100 BILLS AT BANQUET

ATLANTIC CITY, Jan. 30.—Robert Meyeroff, a retired wholesale man of large means, for eighteen years a resident of Atlantic City, celebrated the seventy-eighth anniversary of his birth. "This is going to be a family affair," he said to the proprietor of the Hotel Brighton(?) in ordering a dinner for fourteen. "Give me the best the house has. What do I want? You know better than I do. I haven't time to bother my head with such details. You do it." But the guests found $100 bills concealed in the napkins at their plates, the gift of Mr. Meyeroff.

ROGERS TO WAGE WAR IN AIR ON ITALIANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Frank Rogers, a young aviator, who flies a biplane owned by Peter McLaughlin of Mineola, is preparing to go to Turkey with his craft to operate as an aerial soldier against the Italians in the war at Tripoli. Rogers is a citizen of Washington. He was enlisted in the Turkish service through a foreign agency which advertised in many of the French and German aviation magazines. He expects to leave for Turkey this week.

BOSTON-1915 ENDS AS TASK IS FINISHED

Boston—1915 has, with the accomplishment of what it set out to achieve, been discontinued as a separate organization. The executive committee of the organization has decided, after several months' long survey of the situation, that the program originally suggested has been carried through, that the cooperation and coordination of the many organizations in the metropolitan district has been insured, and the directors decided to disband.

INTERVENTION AGAIN DEMANDED IN CUBA

HAVANA, Jan. 30.—Foreign interests in Cuba have made another appeal to the United States government for intervention, it was learned today, as a result of socialistic agitation for a general strike. Planters declare that the Cuban government cannot cope with the labor situation, and that vast crops of cane are going to waste because they cannot be harvested.

TROOPS FIRE FIRST SHOT IN STOPPING STRIKERS' ATTACK ON MILL

SON OF EX-MAYOR ARRESTED IN CONNECTION WITH PLANTING OF DYNAMITE.

the shooting occurred last night and he was charged with threatening to shoot a soldier. He was fined $100.

John Ash, a striker and a good deal of a wag, was fined $5 for intoxication and $25 for disturbing the peace.

"All I did," said Ash, "was to wave the American flag. It's pretty hard to follow the flag at $25 a wave."

Louis Tirocci, who took a lunch basket from a boy and destroyed it, was fined $20.

Strikers numbering 1,500 "rushed" the main gate of the upper Pacific Mills and had gained the mill yard, when they were discovered.

A hurry call for soldiers came in at the Armory at 5:30. A detail of forty men of D Company went on the double-quick to Canal street, which fronts on the upper Pacific Mills, with a stretch of canal between. A bridge crosses the canal and gives access to the main gate.

When the column of soldiers wheeled into Canal street they found a howling mob of 1,500 rioters, nearly all men, in possession of the street, of the bridge and of the mill yard. They had forced their way through the steel gates and were all over the yard. They were ready to raid the mill itself and the moment was a critical one.

"With the ball" was the order as the soldiers charged into the mob. Though numbering only forty men, the soldiers charged so impetuously and with such savage earnestness that the mob scattered. The soldiers cleared Canal street, gained the bridge and jammed their way into the mill yard, driving out every rioter in short order.

The fact that the soldiers have been ordered to stand no nonsense now has become known, and the rioters did not venture much resistance.

Threat to Shoot.

One striker was stubborn and was arrested. He had been ordered by Private Harrington to move on. Harrington put the butt of his gun against the man's chest. The man grabbed the gun and a scuffle ensued. Just then this man spied a second man running from the mill yard with a covered basket. He let go of Harrington's gun, drew a revolver and turned to pursue the second man.

"Halt!" yelled Harrington.

"I'll shoot him and you, too," yelled the rioter.

Harrington dropped his own gun and jumped at the man, two other soldiers aiding him. The rioter was overpowered. In the melee he dropped his revolver, which was picked up by another rioter, who got away. Thus the weapon, which would have formed "Exhibit A" in the charge of carrying concealed weapons, disappeared. But the soldiers lugged the man away and gave him into custody, charged with assault and carrying the weapon.

Having dispersed the rioters, the soldiers finally returned to the armory.

The first shots fired by the militia rang out early today. The volley was aimed at men going toward the [illegible] mill. No one was hurt.

Woman Killed by a Bullet.

Since late yesterday afternoon these events have taken place in connection with the riotous strike:

Annie Lapizzo, a striker, was shot and killed by a stray bullet. It is not known who fired the shot.

Policeman Oscar Benoit was stabbed. It was thought at first that he would die. He is a very fleshy man and that saved him, the wound not being deep enough to reach a vital part.

Colonel Sweetser said today that the militia would not hesitate to shoot from now on if it were necessary.

Governor Foss has offered to attempt to settle the strike personally if the mill men will pay fifty-six hours' wages for fifty-four hours' work for thirty days, and the strikers agree to go back for that time while the Governor is trying to end the controversy.

Agent Hartshorn of the Arlington mills said during the morning that his mills would open at noon. The Pacific, Washington, Wood, Ayer, Kunhardt, Prospect and Uswoco mills were open as usual. This left only the Everett and Atlantic closed.

The mills opened three-quarters of an hour later than the usual time, 6:45. This was to give the operatives who wished to come to work the benefit of daylight, so they would be less open to attack.

All the mills are running with greatly reduced forces. It was estimated that the mill agent gained 10 operatives over the number that returned to work yesterday.

Henry A. Mack, commander of General Lawton Post 146, G. A. R. of Lawrence, protested to Mayor Scanlon today against strikers carrying the American flag. He voiced a feeling of many citizens that the flag is being carried merely as a shield from attack by the militia and that the ostentatious patriotism of the paraders is a bluff. That is the way the Grand Army veterans regard it, at least.

Colonel Sweetser feels the same way. To-day he issued orders that the militia need not salute the Stars and Stripes when carried by strike paraders. The strikers have taken delight in demanding that the soldiers salute the flag, which the soldiers have promptly done, but Colonel Sweetser says that the strike parades are not those of regular organizations and that it is not necessary for the soldiers to salute the flag in the way they have been doing when strikers demanded it.

The two troops of cavalry just added to the militia forces are quartered in the old Y. M. C. A. Building. The horses are stabled at John Porter's stable.

The cavalry is being held in reserve in case of rioting and is not called on so far for patrol duty.

The detail of forty-eight men, with officers in addition, from the Metropolitan Park police, is lodged in one of the Council Chambers in the City Hall. Cots have been put in for them.

Soldiers Ready to Shoot.

Commenting on the firing of shots by the soldiers today, Colonel E. Leroy Sweetser, in command, issued the following statement:

"It was thought that we were afraid to shoot. But they were mightily mistaken. We are going to look for trouble—legitimate trouble, that is—from now on. Whenever a disturbance occurs, we will be right there to take a hand.

"The cavalry will do general patrol work throughout the city to-day.

"With regard to saluting the flags carried by the strikers, the soldiers will no longer salute, as we do not consider that the flags are carried by an organization. Former salutes have ben simply performed as a measure to preserve peace. We're not looking for peace now."

"I am empowered to assist the civil authorities, to make arrests, and to detail men till this trouble is over. The soldiers will do this."

Colonel Sweetser was asked today whether he would take any steps toward the arrest of Ettor, leader of the strikers. He said:

"I will go at once and arrest him if I receive any request from the civil authorities. Or if he violates my military rules in any way, I will arrest him and do it quick. Thus far, I have no definite plans in the matter."

The police to-day declared that they would jail Ettor on the slightest provocation or upon the complaint of any citizen that he had incited to riot. Ettor took no apparent notice of the threat and addressed the strikers.

The police hoped to make the arrest without disorder and were backed by a sufficient force—more than 2,000 soldiers and 500 police—to keep the crowds under control should any attempt be made to save Ettor from the authorities.

"I expect to be arrested," said Ettor, "but it makes no difference. The mill owners started the riot and they are responsible."

Ettor is a striking personality. He is but twenty-six years old, yet is national organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World. He came here from New York and organized the great strike which has paralyzed the industry of Lawrence and turned the streets of the city into a military camp and a turbulent scene of warfare.

Ettor is the force and brains of the strike. He has a magnetic personality and a forceful manner, and the strikers have obeyed his slightest order without question. His addresses have stirred them to action and his arguments have been irresistible to the mill workers.

Ettor is fearless and impetuous. He appears to have unlimited courage and nerve, backed by a thorough grasp of the industrial situation here, a knowledge of the mill workers and the thorough confidence of the strikers.

Ettor a Metal Worker.

Ettor is of Italian ancestry, but is an American. He was born in New York in 1885. His mother died when he was nine years old. His father was a laborer, and he had small chance for an education. He was in the New York schools but one year. He managed to scrape up some education in Omaha and Tacoma, but most of his knowledge he has acquired in the school of experience.

Ettor is a metal worker by trade, but since assuming his position in the labor world has had no time for work of that kind.

He is a born leader of men. In repose he does not impress, but when speaking all of his power of fascination is in play. He has a rare gift of impressing his hearers and holding their attention.

Ettor has many followers among the women, whom he declares are the backbone of any strike. "In the past strikes did not amount to so much," he says, "because they did not have the support of the women. But now that industrial conditions have enfranchised the women and they have taken a deep, hearty interest in industrial affairs, they have furnished the enthusiasm which now makes the strike successful. In Lawrence we have the thorough support of the women and that is why we are going to win.

"I did not start this strike. The mill owners precipitated it, and they are to blame for the conditions that now prevail here. Had they been fair to the employés this would never have happened, but we will win this strike."

Advance on Mill Buildings.

The first shot was fired by a member of Company C of the Eighth Regiment of Cambridge, who was on guard, with others, at the bridge across the Merrimac River near the Uswoco mills.

The patrol of soldiers on the bridge, watching the river on both sides, detected a dark mass of men moving slowly across the ice on the river in an attempt to approach the mill buildings.

The command to halt was given. Then, as the men still moved toward the mills, the command was repeated and more shots fired.

The attacking party of strikers hesitated, then put back to the bank from which they had come. When a platoon of soldiers reached the spot, the tracks in the snow led up the bank into a trodden alley. There were no signs of blood on the snow, and it is not thought that any one was wounded.

Colonel Sweetser, in command, has issued an order that no parades, mass meetings or demonstrations in any force will be allowed, and no gatherings of strikers were permitted in any public streets. Guards patrolled the "Plains" and the Common dispersing every crowd that gathered.

At one time, on the Plains, a group of strikers gathered and attempted to hold up men on their way to work. Four militiamen came up on the double quick and ordered them to disperse. When they were slow to move, the soldiers presented their bayonets and advanced, and the men were prodded back down Oak street and scattered.

In the early street cars, militiamen with loaded rifles and fixed bayonets rode, ready to repel the first sign of an attack. Few passengers used the cars.

The woman who was killed by a bullet during riots in the Lawrence streets, has been identified. She is Annie Lapizzo, unmarried, thirty-four years old, of No. 18½ Common street. She was a striker, formerly employed in one of the mills.

Medical Examiner George M. Dow will to-day perform an autopsy to determine whether she was killed by a stray bullet, as was at first supposed. The identification was made by a friend at the hospital morgue.

Oscar Benoit, the police officer who was stabbed in the same affray as a result of which the woman was killed, is recovering from the effects of his wound.

The new force of soldiers which entered Lawrence during the night has enabled the authorities to redouble their guards throughout the town, and Lawrence is in a state of practical martial law, though technically martial law is not permissible in this State.

2,500 Soldiers on Duty.

Twenty-five hundred soldiers were on duty in Lawrence to-day.

The mills opened to-day, and although the opening was delayed later than usual, accessions to the forces over yesterday were reported.

Trolley wires were cut on the lines leading in from Methuen, Haverhill and Lowell, delayed traffic on these lines for half an hour, till repairs were made. Pickets were busy in the outlying districts, where many of the workers live.

Guards have been placed about every bank and other public building of importance, and the persons and homes of many people who have been active in fighting the strike or denouncing the strikers are under guard.

A heavy guard along Essex street was the militia's answer to a threat that every window on Essex street would be broken to-day. Pedestrians were compelled to move along the sidewalks in single file.

Cross streets off Lawrence were guarded by a line of soldiers down each side, watching for trouble and ready to prevent any demonstration. Police of the Metropolitan Park Division, sent from Boston, with members of the militia, and Lawrence police, patrolled the outlying sections of the city, on the watch for any violence toward mill workers by the strikers.

The offer of Governor Foss to mediate, providing a thirty days' truce can be arranged, during which the strikers shall go back to work on pay for the old fifty-six-hour schedule, aroused much discussion and favorable comment in Lawrence to-day. Joseph J. Ettor, of the strikers' committee and leader of the striking operatives, replied in a brief statement to the Governor's offer, declaring that the strikers would consider no offer which did not have full authorization from the mill men as a whole. The strikers refuse to abate one inch from their original demands.

To-day's plans, it was learned by the police, included the smashing of every store window on Essex street. In preparation for such an attack, soldiers lined the streets, foot passengers were forced to walk single file, and every attempt to congregate on the part of the strikers was checked in its beginning.

Instructions were given to the soldiers today not to accept any coffee, liquor, cigars or cigarettes from a stranger, for fear they might be drugged. In one case, early in the day, a restaurant proprietor brought a platoon of shivering militiamen a large can of coffee. They at first declined to accept, but investigation showed the man was all right and the beverage was gratefully accepted.

Police officials and Mayor Scanlon were elated at the results of the new guard of the city which were shown as the time for opening the mills approached. Instead of the howling mobs which filled the streets yesterday, there was not a picket in sight, except on the "Plains." There small crowds gathered during the early hours, but were quickly dispersed by the soldiers.

Guard Bank Building.

On the Common, where yesterday the strikers congregated and snatched from persons going to work their dinner baskets and their working clothes, three companies of soldiers patrolled, and the Common was kept free of crowds.

It was learned to-day that threats had been made against the Rev. Father Raymond Plansans, who denounced Joseph J. Ettor and demanded his arrest. As a result of his attack on Ettor he was condemned by the strike committee, and the police learned that his life had been threatened. He is now under close guard by a detachment of militia, who watch the house continually.

The Bay State Bank building is also the subject of threats. It, too, is guarded. Along the sidewalk, a company of militia, Company F of Waltham, Captain Jones, is drawn up in triple line, and no person not known is allowed to approach the building. Justin E. Varney, chairman of the Citizen's committee, which has been active in efforts for peace, is cashier of this bank.

Colonel E. Leroy Sweetser has stated that hereafter there will be "no fooling" on the part of the militia, and that an order given by them must be obeyed on the instant, or trouble will result. No gatherings, parades, or mass meetings will be allowed.

Told of this, Joseph J. Ettor said: "That doesn't apply to me. The military have no control over me, nor over the strikers so long as they keep the peace."

"But suppose they close the halls?" was suggested.

"They won't close the churches," said the strike leader.

The strikers are arming. Hardware stores are doing a heavy trade in revolvers and ammunition, knives and "billys." One woman, decently dressed, entered a hardware store and asked for some sort of a slungshot or club, a small club that could be concealed about her person and readily produced. The clerk questioned her.

Magazine Revolvers Found.

"I want to work in the mills," she said. "But I don't dare go back and forth without a weapon of some kind. I have been carrying a revolver for some days, but I would use that only as a last resort. This will be easier used, and not so dangerous. But at the same time, I can protect myself."

The slungshot was sold her, and she left the store. An officer who questioned the clerk afterwards believed that the woman was not an employe, but a striker, and it is feared that the women, as well as the men are arming.

In many cases of men arrested, magazine revolvers capable of firing eight to eleven shots a second, have been found, and numerous ordinary repeaters.

The scene at the Armory with the arrival of the new militia more resembled a camp on the eve of battle, than a gathering in a peaceful city. Sentries are posted outside, while inside artillery equipment was being shifted to make room for the new soldiers, cots were being put in place, and soldiers here and there were cleaning their equipment, oiling their rifles and preparing in every way for instant, effective service.

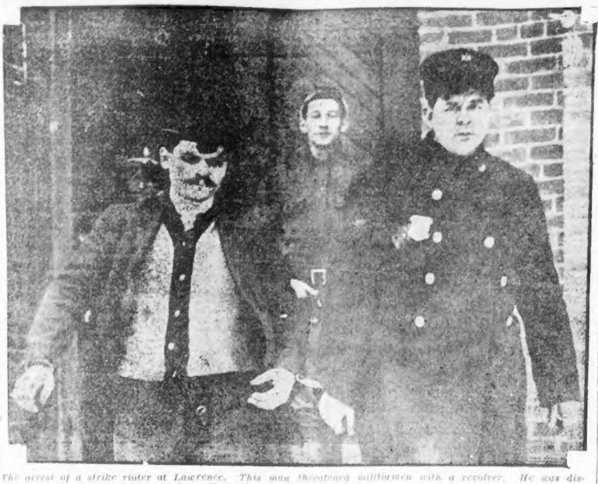
The first bloodshed of the strike followed an hour's encounter between a mob of strikers and a squad of policemen reinforced by a platoon of militia men at Garden and Union streets near the Everett mills.

In the general melee, several of the strikers were severely injured, two soldiers were hurt, and a score of police officers and militia men had narrow escapes from flying bullets. Neither the police nor the soldiers fired any shots, although the strikers in their retreat let fly a fusilade of bullets.

The trouble started when a crowd of strikers began to assemble, waiting for the operatives at work in the Wood and Ayer mills to leave their work.

The ranks of the strikers were continually increasing and the larger the crowd grew the more violent became the threats.

Weapons were openly brandished and the strikers had no hesitancy in declaring they would enlist the "scabs" in their ranks or else "put them out of business."



The arrest of a strike rioter at Lawrence. This man threatened militiamen with a revolver. He was disarmed and turned over to the police.

SENTRY'S SHOT HALTS GROUP OF WORKERS NEAR THE USWOCO MILLS.

A fireman in the house of Engine 2, nearby, noting the dangerous trend and fearing there would be serious trouble, telephoned police the situation, urging the police to come at once and disperse the gathering.

A squad of twelve officers, under command of Sergeant Spranger was marched to the scene. Without wasting any words with the strikers, the officers drew their clubs and summarily ordered them to disperse. The crowd refused.

The police charged, using their clubs freely, and after a fight which lasted five minutes succeeded in driving the mob back in four directions, clearing the square formed by the crossing of the two streets.

Women Urge Men On.

For a time hostilities ceased. But a crowd of women and fellow-strike-breakers leaning from the windows of all the houses in the vicinity by derisive expletives urged the strikers to return the charge of the police. The mob of workingmen grew excited, and after hurling a few offensive remarks made a concerted rush.

A bitter fight was the outcome. The strikers used clubs and threw all sorts of missiles. The police rapped every head within reach and several of the strikers had to be carried from the scene. As the fight progressed, the strikers became more excited and their ranks were reinforced gradually by men from the houses in the vicinity. At last the bluecoats succeeded in again repulsing the rioters and drove them back on side streets.

Soldiers Rescue Police.

For a time it seemed as if the mob was going to disperse, but they were merely concentrating their forces, preparing to charge the police. Many had drawn guns by this time but no shots had been fired.

The police were too quick for the strikers, however, and before the mob could act, they had charged their ranks.

The strikers again fell back but gathered again soon afterward and prepared for another sally. In the meanwhile a platoon of Company D of the Eighth Regiment, under command of Captain Cody, had witnessed from a distance the continued struggles of the strikers and the police, and the order to march was given.

Making a detour, the company proceeded through adjoining thoroughfares and came upon the strikers in the rear. The mill workers were hemmed in between the police and militia men. They still refused to disperse, however, and the police and the soldiers attacked them at the same time.

Guns Smashed in Riot.

In the fight which followed the soldiers used the butts of their rifles and two of the stocks were broken from the barrels in the encounter.

The strikers fought desperately for several minutes, but they could not stand up against the combined forces of the police and the militia men. Many were severely injured and had to be carried from the street.

They were knocked down by blows over the head, while two militia men received cuts about the face from clubs and flying missiles and several of the policemen were hurt in a similar manner.

The ranks of the strikers began to thin. Several threatened to fire on the troops, but the order to fix bayonets and the guns of the officers frightened them and they darted away down the darkened alleyways. Hidden from the darkness a moment later five shots rang out in quick succession, evidently as a signal for the men who had retreated to gather again.

Officer Stabbed.

Immediately a mob of strikers rushed down Common street toward Garden and attempted to pass the crossing. They were met by Patrolman Oscar Benoit. He called upon them to disperse and return to their homes. They pushed by him and he grappled with two of them.

A tall, slender Italian, not more than twenty-five years old, with a dark overcoat buttoned tightly about his throat and a black slouch hat pulled down over his eyes, pulled a pistol and, resting it on the shoulder of a man in front of him, aimed at Benoit.

The bullet grazed the officer's left ear, and at the same time he was stabbed in the back with a stiletto, and, staggering backward, almost fell.

Crying out for aid, he pulled his club, and, with blood streaming from a wound in the left side of his back, cleaved a space about him. He was rapidly losing ground when the sound of patrolmen, with Sergeant Spranger, rushed around the corner.

The strikers retreated. But as they did so the greater part of them pulled revolvers and, without warning, opened fire on the police. A fusillade of bullets whistled about and one buried itself in the body of the young Italian woman who had been standing on the corner.

She fell, and a patrolman who rushed to her saw that a bullet had entered her left breast. An ambulance was called, while police and the strikers attempted to stop the flow of blood.

Twenty or thirty shots had been fired by the strikers, but the sight of the falling woman seemed to cause a panic, for they ran down the street and, scattering in every direction, were swallowed up in the night.

In the meanwhile the ambulance had arrived and the woman was lifted into it. She was dead by the time the Lawrence General Hospital was reached.

Hurry Call for Ambulances.

Another ambulance arrived on the scene a moment later, and Patrolman Benoit, weak from the loss of blood, was placed in it and also taken to the hospital.

The physicians at the hospital declared that the woman could not have suffered much, as the nature of the wound was such that death must have come quickly.

The bullet entered her left breast and, deflecting downward, passed through her body. It was found just under the skin over the right kidney. It was a 38-calibre bullet such as is used in an automatic revolver.

The body was removed to the hospital morgue. The woman was between twenty-five and thirty, poorly clad.

Policeman Not Seriously Injured.

A worn shawl was wrapped about her shoulders. She wore a wedding ring and was of dark complexion, with dark brown hair and eyes.

As some of the surgeons at the hospital were probing for the bullet other doctors were caring for Patrolman Benoit.

It was found that he had been stabbed in the left side of his back over the kidney with a small stiletto.

Several stitches were taken, and after the wound was dressed he was taken to his home.

Ettor, when asked to make a statement relative to the wrecking of street railway property, repeated charges made by him in which he characterized the acts of vandalism as those of agents of the operators, and not the acts of strikers. He said:

Ettor Says He Urged Peace.

"The only heads that were cracked at the alleged riot as usual were those of the workers. It is of some significance that at the place where the cars were stopped there was only a small group of pickets, that there were plenty of policemen on the north side of Essex street and plenty of militiamen on the south side, yet in plain view a trolley was pulled off and windows broken.

"A few people were allowed to get out of the cars undisturbed. There were no school children bothered, certainly no school children were in the cars between 6 and 7 in the morning.

"We urge upon the workers to keep cool and watch and see who does the provoking of disorder. Your fight is won. You need not be worried over the promises or threats of the agents of the other side.

"You have the right and duty to make your fellow-workers aware of the false promises of the masters. Do not provoke trouble; do not let any of the agents provoke you.

Joseph J. Ettor, Lawrence mill strike leader.

The mills are closed tighter than they were two weeks ago. It is claimed that eighty per cent. of the strikers want to return to work, but this is not true."

In answer to the request of Essex street business men, who feared for the safety of their stores and stock, sentries paced the southerly side of the street and requested all belated citizens to keep on the north side, farthest from the mills.

When the call for the cavalry reached the armories of Troops A and B, the work of getting officers and members together was at once commenced. Those at a great distance were telegraphed for; others were called on the phone while others were visited by squad leaders. In the meantime guard ammunition for the fresh troops was ordered from the South Framingham arsenal to Lawrence and will be distributed upon their arrival in that city. The issue made first was known as guard ammunition to distinguish it from the service ammunition, that was given out to the first troops. There was very little excitement at either of the two armories occupied by the assembling troops, both officers and men having been expecting a call.

Troop A Led.

Captain Appleton of Troop A was about the first at his armory, and the men continued to arrive steadily till assembly sounded and the men fell in on the drill floor. Following roll call they were dismissed to saddle their animals, and a little later the troop, some forty-five strong, rode from the Ruggles street armory for the rendezvous, Causeway and Portland streets. There was a long wait here for Troop B, which made a long ride from the Irvington street armory, and when Captain Blake's command appeared, the two commands, under command of Major Schmitz, the latter accompanied by Lieutenant Hall, adjutant; Lieutenant Holt, quartermaster, Captain Tenney and Lieutenant Mays, assistant surgeons, rode to the freight sheds opposite the old Fitchburg station, where the embarkation took place.

This was a slow process, involving the placing of animals and baggage in freight cars, and officers and men in ordinary passenger cars.

The men of A troop, owing to the forethought of Captain Appleton, were provided with a couple of pairs of heavy woolen stockings.

On the train with the cavalry was a detachment of ten men from the hospital corps, under command of Sergeant Thompson. These men will relieve some of the hospital corps men who have been on duty some time.

Governor's Statement.

Following the ordering out of the additional militia forces, Dudley M. Holman, secretary to Governor Foss, issued a statement on behalf of the Governor. The statement follows:

"At the request of Mayor Scanlon and the City Council of Lawrence, who came to see the Governor in regard to the strike situation in Lawrence, the Governor, after consultation with the adjutant-general, has ordered twelve companies of infantry and two troops of cavalry to proceed at once to Lawrence.

"The Governor has also requested of Chairman De Las Casas a detail of 150 officers from the Metropolitan park force, which will leave for Lawrence to aid in patrolling in the outskirts of the city.

Lieutenant-Colonel Charles P. Ropes will be in command of Companies A, B, C and D of the Second Corps Cadets from Salem; Major Meredith of the Fifth Regiment will be in command of Companies H of Charlestown, C of Newton and F of Waltham. Major Canfield will be in command of Companies K and M of the Eighth Regiment from Somerville and Major Sweetser in command of Companies A of the Sixth from Wakefield and H of the Sixth from Stoneham. Major Schmitz will be in command of Troops A and B, Cavalry, from Boston.

"The Governor intends that there shall be ample protection to life and property in the city of Lawrence. It is expected that the troops will be on the ground early."

STATE INQUIRY OF MILL STRIKE IS VOTED DOWN

After wrestling with the question more than two hours, the Joint Committee on Rules of the Legislature voted unanimously against any investigation of the Lawrence strike at the present time.

The committee voted 6 to 6 against the suggestion that it would be well to assure the public that at a later time a legislative investigation would be ordered to determine the causes of the Lawrence strike and the general situation with respect to the textile industry of the State.

The votes were taken after the sub-committee of the House Rules Committee, consisting of Speaker Cushing and Representatives Bothfeld and Meaney, had reported to the full committee that they were convinced as a result of their visit to Lawrence last week that the strikers did not want legislative interference.

This sub-committee was appointed to report to the full committee today on the Governor's special message and the two orders for an investigation which are pending before it.

President Greenwood of the Senate, Speaker Cushing of the House, Senator Barnes of Weymouth, and Representatives Bothfeld of Newton and Meaney of Blackstone.

The Governor's recommendation was that the Legislature appoint a committee, or give him authority to appoint a commission, to investigate the Lawrence strike situation, to determine whether the reduction of wages under the fifty-four-hour law was necessary; whether the employers have been bringing into the mills the cheapest grade of European labor, and whether they have been sharing with their employes the advantages of the protective system.

Some members of the Rules Committee are of the opinion that it is the duty of the Governor to restore order in Lawrence before he asks for any legislative interference. Others believe he now possesses all the necessary machinery for an investigation in the Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

CITY COUNCILORS OF BOSTON FAVOR PAYING OLD WAGE

Resolutions urging the officials of the Lawrence mills to restore wages to the scale paid before a cut down caused the big strike were adopted at a meeting of the Boston City Council.

When the Lawrence resolutions, introduced by Councilor Smith of Ward 11, were taken up in executive committee Councilor Kenny asked what right the City Council of Boston had to mix up in the [illegible] conditions now obtaining in Lawrence. He moved that the resolution be laid upon the table.

Councilor Smith said the members of the City Council are interested, since Boston also has mills. The strike, he remarked, started with a few and has now spread to all the Lawrence mills. In the order of events it may spread to Boston, which is the gateway to the whole State. If the Council's influence is but small, it is the duty of the members to use that influence to bring about an end to the trouble.

Councilor Ballantyne said he sympathized with the operatives, as the reduction of the hours of labor from fifty-six to fifty-four was not of their seeking. It was forced upon them by the Legislature. He favored a draft which would urge the mill officials to maintain the old standard until the question can be submitted to the stockholders.

Councilor Kenny still maintained that the City Council of Boston, thirty miles removed from the centre of strife, should not inject itself in the settlement of the strike.

The motion to table was lost and in the Board the resolutions were adopted in an amended form.

UNCERTAINTY OVER METROPOLITAN VISIT

Director Russell of the Boston Opera Company has given out the following statement printed in Boston, that the Metropolitan Company would visit here in the Spring: "While Mr. Gatti-Casazza and myself have talked about the advisability of a short season by the Metropolitan Opera Company in Boston, things have not advanced beyond a mere suggestion, and it is as yet very problematic whether or not the project will come to life. As to the choosing of the repertoire and the designation of artists, it is self-evident that under the circumstances this is nothing but speculation."

READS NEWSPAPER AS TOE IS AMPUTATED

BROCKTON, Jan. 30.—E. A. Emery exhibited great courage at the Brockton Hospital, when he submitted to an operation for a crushed toe. Emery works at the Brockton Stay Company and lives at No. 51 Tabor avenue. A fifty pound weight fell on his toe at the factory and crushed it. He walked to the hospital and informed the physicians what had happened. He was invited to lay himself on the operating table and did so willingly. Picking up a newspaper Emery began reading the day's news while the surgeon cut off the big toe.

SOMERVILLE RAISES PAY OF TEACHERS

The Somerville School Committee adopted the recommendation of its Finance Committee that the salaries of all elementary teachers below the rank of supervising principals be increased $50 a year, beginning February 1, the recommendation to be forwarded to the Mayor and Board of Aldermen. Mrs. Mary G. Whiting unsuccessfully sought to have the report amended so that an increase of $50 for the second year should be included in the recommendation.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREAT CASH HOUSE.

FOR WEDNESDAY we do not lavish much on newspaper space because we do not need to. People have learned just what Wednesday means at this store, and the bargain force of our small advertisement (always without display or ornamentation) is greater than that of many of the highly embellished advertising pages which often appear in the papers. It is not what we SAY about Wednesday, but what we DO on Wednesday that interests the public.

ACTORS DOING PICKET DUTY

Actors in the White Rats' Union stood out in the snow in Boylston street to-day guarding every approach to the James J. Quigley Theatrical Agency at No. 88. Actresses joined the men thespians and encouraged them to keep the Quigley agency from booking any of the profession.

It was the first time in the history of the Boston actors' organization that union pickets were placed about a theatrical agency. The actors' grievance was that Quigley had refused to alter a form of contract which the actors say is unfair.

Joseph Callahan and Judge Bartlett of New York, national organizer and counsel, respectively, for the White Rats, are in Boston to lead the fight against the Quigley Agency. Albert Warner, secretary in charge of the Boston office of the White Rats, assisted them.

The Quigley Agency contracts are said to name only the agency itself and the actor or actress, and are non-enforcible so far as the managers of the theatres are concerned. In opposition to this the actors and actresses demand a contract with the managers direct, through the agency. They further insist that Quigley satisfy all past broken-contract claims held against his agency by members of the White Rats.

TOWN BUREAU TO AID DAN CUPID

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo., Jan. 30.—A municipal matrimonial bureau to be kept at the expense of the city and to be operated without cost to those in search of husbands and wives is the plan of Fred G. Shaffer, director of the Bureau of Publicity and Industry, which has been recently established by the City Commissioners.

TAYLOR JURY HEARS MOTHER

A mother's pathetic story of how her four-year-old daughter found her husband dead in an automobile accident moved the jury to-day in the manslaughter trial of Paul F. Taylor, a son of Ransom F. Taylor, a Worcester millionaire real estate man, before Judge John D. McLaughlin in Cambridge to-day.

The mother was Mrs. Mary Downs, widow of Frank Downs, a Boston lumber dealer, who was one of two killed when Downs' car was run into by Taylor's at Marlboro, September 23 last. Patrick F. Sullivan, a Boston liquor dealer, was the other man killed, and Mrs. Downs, Mrs. Sullivan and Harry L. Nelson, the driver, were injured.

"After we had passed the town line at Marlboro," said Mrs. Downs, "I heard a big car coming up from behind. I was afraid of a collision, and I screamed. My husband stood up. There was a crash, after which I remembered nothing until I heard my four-year-old baby crying. I called out, 'May, come to mama.' The little girl crawled over to where I was. 'Go and see if papa is all right,' I told her. She crept over and shook him. Then she crept back to me and said, 'Mama, papa won't speak to me.'"

Downs was unconscious at the time and died a few hours later.

Chief of Police John F. Mitchell of Marlboro said that he examined the Downs car after the accident and noticed a broken wire on the left-hand side. Mortimer W. F. Liston of the Downs lumber firm said that the wire in question was all right when the car started. The question of this wire was brought up by former District Attorney George S. Taft for the defence.

EGG PRICES TAKE A JUMP SKYWARD

Egg prices are doing a little aeroplane stunt and to-day in the various markets it is a close race with the butter prices for the altitude record. From reports by the dealers both will be soon away out of sight. Even the hardy New England hen has lately shown an inclination to stop operations because of the cold weather. The situation would not be so bad if there was an average supply of storage eggs, but it is many years since the stocks in the coolers were as light as they are now.

DIES SUDDENLY ON THE STREET

An unidentified man was seen to stagger and fall in front of No. 1067 Washington street, South End, to-day by passers by who went to his rescue and found him breathing heavily but unable to speak. While being removed in the ambulance to the City Hospital he died and his body was placed in the morgue of that institution.

He is about fifty years old, five feet seven inches in height and weighs 160 pounds. He wore a dark coat and vest with light colored trousers, black shirt and tan shoes.

WIDOW DEFENDS BANKER'S NAME

Mrs. Alfred W. Converse, widow of the treasurer of the closed Windsor Locks (Ct.) Savings Bank, who is living in Woburn, to-day declared she was positive the apparent shortage of [illegible] in the bank's funds was not caused by her husband's defalcation or speculation in Wall street. She also insisted that his death from a revolver shot was not suicide, but an accident.

Mrs. Converse, who separated from the former bank officer in 1880, is living at the home of her married daughter, Mrs. Alfred Elson, who joins in the defence. Mrs. Elson said to an AMERICAN reporter to-day:

"I don't see how father can be connected with any speculation in Wall Street. I am positive that the investigation now in progress under the direction of the Connecticut bank examiners will clear his memory of the charge of taking the money that belonged to the mill hands and other working people in Windsor Locks.

"I never knew of father's having the desire to speculate. As for his having committed suicide, that is preposterous. I have a letter which he wrote me about three hours, I should say, before he was found dying. It is of a cheerful tone and knowing him as I do, I am sure he could not have written me as he did if he planned taking his life so soon.

"It is true that father and mother parted many years ago. They failed to agree, and decided that a separation would be best under the circumstances."

STORE BURGLAR SUSPECT TAKEN

Two men early to-day were found having a battle in the snow in front of No. 256 Shawmut avenue, where Percy Goosewisch has a fruit store. Patrolmen Augusta and Kelly, who were passing, separated them.

Goosewisch told the officers he saw his combatant, Henry M. Oliver, making an attempt to enter his store. He attacked him and made an attempt to arouse the neighbors, when the officers came along.

Oliver lives at No. 168 College avenue, Somerville. He was taken to the East Dedham station charged with attempt to break and enter a fruit store.

PLAN FOR GREAT TRADE CONGRESS

The introduction into Congress by Senator Lodge of resolutions to extend government recognition to the delegates to the Fifth International Congress of Chambers of Commerce to be held in Boston next September and carrying an appropriation of $50,000, marks the beginning of a campaign which will be carried on in all the principal countries of the world and will make the coming congress next September the most notable gathering of business men of all countries which has ever come to the United States at any one time.

Joseph B. Russell, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that he wished it to be thoroughly understood that this $50,000 was not asked from the United States government for the purpose of the local entertainment of the delegates here in Boston. He feels strongly that the Boston business men are only too glad to do their share to entertain a gathering of this character and that the funds when asked for will be readily forthcoming.

World Organization.

"The necessary expenses, however, of a general organizing campaign which will cover the whole world and will be especially thorough in Europe and North and South America are very large.

"The International Congress of Chambers of Commerce is an organization representing the business men of the entire world. These congresses have obtained a notable place in the business life of Europe and at present this organization, with its permanent headquarters in Brussels, is the most important international business organization in existence.

"It seems to me that this Congress can be made to mean much or little in its results to the people of the United States in accordance with the manner in which we go about the arrangements. With the co-operation and financial assistance of the United States government it can be made an occasion which will long be remembered with pleasure by the business men of other countries.

"If the government neglects the matter, the business men who attend will not leave the United States with those entirely kindly feelings which we desire. The leading business organizations in various large American cities, Chicago, Philadelphia and Indianapolis, to cite a few at the moment, have already written asking for an opportunity to have the foreign delegates visit their city before leaving the United States.

Plan to Raise Fund.

"While each city will undoubtedly be glad to bear the expense of local entertainment, a fund will have to be raised for the general expense in connection with the arrangements for giving the foreign delegates a concrete picture of our varied commercial enterprises.

"There is ample precedent for the granting of such an appropriation by the government. Congress has already appropriated $50,000 for the necessary expenses of the International Association of Navigation Congresses which is also to be held in America next Autumn. It also appropriated $25,000 for the International Association of Hygiene and Demography."

Piper of the Boston & Maine.

DAYLIGHT LYNCHING.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 30.—A lynching in broad daylight in Cordele brought a hurry call for troops to Governor Brown to-day. The negro attacked a young girl of a prominent family in Cordele and was run down by bloodhounds. He was strung up in the suburbs of the town.

READ M'FARLAND LOVE LETTERS

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 30.—The trial of Allison MacFarland in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, accused of the murder of his wife, Evelyn, with cyanide of potassium, took a dramatic turn to-day when Mrs. Lucy Crockett, mother of the dead woman, was called to the stand as one of the prosecution's principal witnesses.

Mrs. Crockett, whose home is in Rockland, Me., took the stand just after a love letter, written by MacFarland to Miss Florence Bromley, of Philadelphia, for love of whom, the State claims, he killed his wife, had been read to the jury. This letter was written on October 19, two days after his arrest. The prosecution rested at 12:25 p. m.

Dressed in deep mourning Mrs. Crockett seemed bowed down with deep grief when she took the stand. MacFarland shifted uneasily in his seat when her name was called and throughout her testimony kept his eyes glued to the floor avoiding her steady gaze in his direction. The object in calling Mrs. Crockett was to disprove the claim of the defence that Mrs. MacFarland took the deadly drug with suicidal intent.

Mrs. Crockett testified that on the very day of her death, her daughter had written an optimistic letter, in which she enthusiastically discussed her plans for the future. This letter, according to the prosecution, is absolute proof that Mrs. MacFarland had no idea of self-destruction.

MacFarland's letter which was read to-day is only one of many he wrote to the Philadelphia girl who at one time was his stenographer. The letter follows:

Miss Florence Bromley, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dearest Bobby—Received your three letters, but none since my last. I am held for causing the death of my wife, but am not worrying about it, as of course, it is preposterous, and will come out right in the end. As you know, my lady had agreed to everything, and, while she might have taken her life purposely, I think she did it by error.

Please do not be discouraged about it, dearest. Forget all about it for the present. It is a terrible mess, but you, dear, are in no way responsible, and I do not feel that I am to blame in the matter. My knowledge of innocence and your love will keep me up.

Remember, above all things, dearest, do not worry about it. What is to be, will be, and at worst we only die. Keep close to me on our wireless. Remember I think of you always. It seems such a pity when our affairs were going so smoothly.

(Here were a number of asterisks which MacFarland meant for kisses.)

I will write you if you want me, but the letters are read. Everybody knows about us, but there is nothing getting outside, I know you are there, even if you don't write.

With all my love. Al.

ODD CONTEST ON HASTINGS' WILL

Henry Hastings, the son of the late Commodore Hastings, filed a bill of complaint with the clerk of Suffolk Superior Court to-day, asking for an injunction against J. Warren Bailey of Newton, the executor under the will of Kate Hastings, who died February 2, 1907, after a decree had been given the complainant for a return of his personal property by a [illegible].

This property, which is listed under two exhibits, is said to be the oddest ever filed in Suffolk county. It contains a list of material, from a bottle of brandy left by Great Grandmother Hastings, to the family Bible.

It is alleged in the bill of complaint [illegible] Hastings, that Bailey had possession of the property and refused to give it up. Hastings asks the court to enjoin Bailey from transferring, assigning, selling or disposing of the property, and that he be ordered to produce it. He also asks that an assessment for damages for the wrongful detention of the property be made and a decree entered for payment.

Here are some of the properties on the list: A mustard pot, father's Harvard College book and plate, great-grandmother's fan, mother's wedding slippers, a bear head, a loon, buffalo horns, a collection of eggs, a bedspread from Hong Kong, a fox, an eagle, an owl, a dictionary, a set of tools, a coat of arms, a group picture taken when a baby, two cologne bottles, a punch bowl with grapes painted on it, autograph letters of his great-grandfather and many other things.

TWO BOYS HURT IN COASTING ACCIDENT

Paul Corbin, aged thirteen years, son of Station Agent Wallace M. Corbin of No. 18 Horace street, Malden, and George R. Munroe, aged twelve years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Munroe of No. 4 Oak Grove terrace, Malden, were badly hurt in a coasting accident on Horace street, Malden. A sled upon which the boys were coasting struck a Boston laundry company's auto truck.

WOMEN'S CLUBS OPEN NEW HAVEN CONCLAVE

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Jan. 30.—The New England conference of Federated Women's Clubs opened a two-day session at which child labor, pure milk and conservation were the principal topics assigned for discussion in the United Church in this city this afternoon. Miss Georgia A. Bacon, president of the Massachusetts Federation, was the presiding officer, and the conferees included the presidents and committee chairmen of the federations in the six New England States.

GIN FOR THE KIDNEYS

Gin is one of the oldest known remedies for kidney and bladder troubles, especially when used in the following formula: "Six ounces good pure gin; half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murax compound." Any druggist can supply or mix these ingredients. Shake well each time and take in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after meals and at bed time.

This is the most effective remedy known for the usual result of kidney and bladder disorders. Such symptoms as backache, frequent or highly colored urine, rheumatic pains in the groin ought to have prompt attention to prevent Bright's disease or diabetes.

NO MORE DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR OR ITCHY SCALP IF YOU DO THIS.

Your hair looks soft, fluffy, lustrous and abundant after a Danderine hair cleanse

Immediate?—Yes. Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

A delightful surprise awaits, particularly those who have been careless, whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff, cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

Try as you will, you cannot find any dandruff or a loose or falling hair and your scalp will never itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use of Danderine, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

Lotta Crabtree Saves Horses from the Ice Provides Humane Fund for Chain Shoes
—Boston Sunday AMERICAN, January 21st, 1912

This is the Shoe Referred to Above

KINNELL CHAIN SHOES

Give Your Horse 4 Sure Feet To Work On!

EVERY HORSE THAT WEARS KINNELL-CHAIN-SHOES IS ENABLED TO STAND UP AND DO A FULL DAY'S WORK—EVEN ON ICY ASPHALT.

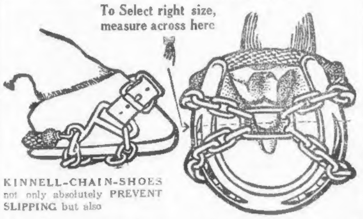
JOHN WANAMAKER, Philadelphia, says of the Kinnell-Chain-Shoes: "One pair of horses will do the work of four without them. We found that out from actual test here in the City."

"Fit like a glove, and go on as easily." Save their cost in one day.

THERE'S THE REASON

Never grow dull. Sharp till the finish, and then some more. Just the thing to put on for an hour or two mornings and evenings when the streets are slippery.



To Select right size, measure across here

KINNELL-CHAIN-SHOES not only absolutely PREVENT SLIPPING but also

Protect the Frog and Sole From Injury

because every time the horse puts his weight on his feet, the links between the ordinary shoe and the ground that bear all the weight, turn part way over, thus shortening and tightening all four chains and making a suspension bridge over the hollow of the foot. When the horse lifts his feet, the chains loosen slightly and the snow shakes out.

Since the invention of the Kinnell-Chain-Shoe (WHICH DOES FOR THE HORSE WHAT THE NON-SKID CHAIN DOES FOR THE AUTOMOBILE), there is no excuse for horses slipping and falling.

Put a set on your horse and make a noise like an auto.

Every driver can carry a set of Kinnell-Chain-Shoes in his wagon, and when the streets become suddenly slippery, NO MATTER WHERE HE IS, he can strap them on his horse's feet in a MINUTE and go along as though the streets were dry.

After one trial, you will never be without them.

"The most satisfactory equipment to prevent horses from slipping I have ever seen."—Belden Seymour.

MAIL ORDERS receive special attention. Just give measurement across widest part of bottom of hoof, enclose $1 for each shoe and we will send correct size.

FOR SALE by all High-Class Harness Dealers and Jobbers in Boston and New England.

To Horse Owners—Use Kinnell-Chain-Shoes and save your horses sprained joints and broken legs. Prevention is better than cure.

To Drivers—Use KINNELL-CHAIN-SHOES and get home to supper on time.

WOMAN STARTS RUN ON BANK

A woman's idle gossip drew a crowd of 500 depositors to the bank and store of H. Slobodkin at No. 40 Lowell street to-day, and they besieged the place long before the time of opening. Slobodkin, accompanied by two tellers from the Commonwealth Trust Company and J. A. Benner, assistant cashier of the New England National Bank, was on hand at 9:30 o'clock with plenty of money to supply all demands.

The crowd was greatly excited when the banker did not appear at 9 o'clock, and it took a squad of police to keep order. When Slobodkin appeared there was a rush for the doors, and the banker and his assistants, guarded by police, were kept busy handing out money.

"The bank is solvent and I will pay the depositors dollar for dollar as fast as they come in," said Slobodkin. "I have paid out over $50,000 between yesterday morning and 9 o'clock last night and I'll keep the place open until 9 o'clock to-night to accommodate them. I am not worrying at all."

J. A. Benner of the New England National bank endorsed Slobodkin's statement. "The man is perfectly good," he said, "and is worth $50,000 clear of everything. The run on the bank started from false rumors spread by a woman, but he does not need money as the Commonwealth Trust Company is backing him strongly."

ASK FOR PRESIDENT'S AID AT TRADE MEET

Senator Lodge introduced in Washington a joint resolution requesting President Taft to invite, in the name of the United States, all the commercial nations of the world to participate in the Boston convention, September 24-28, when the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce and allied commercial and industrial associations meet here.

An appropriation of $60,000 is asked for in the Massachusetts Senator's resolution. This is to provide for convention expenses and for a tour of the country by the foreign delegates.

SIX IN ARLINGTON ILL WITH SMALLPOX

Following the discovery of six cases of smallpox in the house at No. 15 Lowell street, Arlington, one of the victims being an attendant at the Cutter School, every pupil in the seventh and eighth classes is being vaccinated to-day by order of the Health Board.

The names of the persons stricken are: Arthur McPherson, twenty-eight years old; Mrs. Cora McPherson, twenty-five years old; Annie Evelyn McPherson, three and one half years old; Mrs. Eliza Fowler, fifty-three years old; Bessie Fowler, thirty years old and Alpha Fowler, fourteen years old.

INDIAN PRINCESS, WHO MAY REJECT MARRIAGE OFFER

PRINCESS INDIRARAJ

Two photographs of daughter of Gaekwar of Baroda and sister of young Gaekwar who is a student at Harvard.

The beautiful Princess Indirajah of Baroda, daughter of the Gaekwar of Baroda, who is one of the most enlightened rulers in Hindustani, and sister of the young Gaekwar of Baroda, who is a student at Harvard, was to have been married to the Maharajah Scindia of Gwalior, but late cablegrams indicate that there is some hitch in the arrangements, and the wedding may not take place.

Princess Indirajah is one of the most beautiful girls in all Hindustan. Her marriage to the Maharajah Scindia of Gwalior was to have been accompanied by all the pomp and ceremony of the Hindu rite. Though she needs no adornment of sparkling gems that are so abundant in the palaces of the rulers of India, it is safe to say that the jewels she would have worn at the ceremony would have dazzled the eyes even of the women of the Orient.

OPEN ARGUMENT IN BOLDUC CASE

Evidence in the Bolduc case closed at 10:55 to-day. A recess of fifteen minutes was taken before arguments of counsel were begun. It was expected that these arguments would occupy quite a while, with three attorneys for the defense to be heard, in addition to the government.

Edward P. Barry argues for Dr. John D. Ferguson and Miss Mary A. O'Neil. John P. Feeney argues for Mrs. Jennie Shattuck and John McCaig for Mrs. Annie M. Reed.

Mrs. Shattuck was on the witness stand again to-day. During cross-examination by Attorney Barry she swore that no physician was at her home, No. 47 Woodlawn street, Forest Hills, where the body of Marie A. Bolduc was found, between December 16 and December 22, 1911, except Dr. Ferguson and a Dr. Johnson, who was attending a patient.

Walter A. Chipman, a Manchester, N. H., druggist, explained some sales of medicine to Dr. Ferguson. Then evidence closed.

BROWN ENDOWMENT FUND NOW $615,310

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 30.—The Brown endowment campaign brought a total last night of $615,310. The contributions from Saturday's closing reached $27,185. Another contribution of $25,000 was received and the strictest secrecy maintained in regard to the contributor, Mr. and Mrs. N. positively refusing to allow even a suggestion of their names to be made public. The subscription was received in cash, and the only statement that was made by President Faunce was that it came from a man and his wife, neither of whom are graduates of the university, who live in another State. Samuel C. Eastman, a graduate in the class of '57, sent his check for $1,000. He is a New Hampshire lawyer.

Europe Leads in Fighting Consumption

Great Foreign Remedy Now Being Used in America.

Specialists in Europe have been fighting Consumption during the last few years with remarkable success by using a Swiss preparation called Sirolin.

This is of great interest to sufferers in this Country because Sirolin has been imported lately in great quantities, and is sure to become just as valuable in the treating of the disease here as it is abroad.

Sirolin, although very powerful in attacking the Tubercle Bacilli, contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. It seems to agree with the most delicate stomach, and creates an appetite that would do credit to a healthy man, thus making it a great body-builder.

Additional information about Sirolin can be obtained in this Country by addressing the Sirolin Company, 223 West Broadway, New York City.

All leading druggists are recommending and distributing Sirolin with considerable success.

R. H. WHITE CO.

EXTEND INQUIRY ON BRANDT CASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—There will be a further investigation by the District Attorney into all the circumstances surrounding the alleged burglary, arrest, trial, conviction and sentence of Foulke E. Brandt, the former valet of Mortimer L. Schiff, who was given thirty years imprisonment by Judge Rosalsky. This inquiry, it is said, will be extended to reach any others who may be involved in the case.

It was stated on high authority that Howard S. Gans, who is now fighting to keep Brandt in jail, received a $2,500 fee from the Schiff family. Carl Fisher Hansen, who became attorney for Brandt, after he was called into the case by Judge Rosalsky, said that the District Attorney's office under Jerome gave explicit orders to the doorkeeper of the Tombs that no visitors be allowed to see Brandt.

Looked Up Brandt's Record.

Police Commissioner Waldo will ask the District Attorney's office for a report on an investigation of Lieutenant Joseph L. Wooldridge, who looked up Brandt's record at the time of his trial, and most of whose charges against Brandt have been disproved by the District Attorney's investigators. District Attorney Whitman's report concerning Brandt, recommending that his sentence be commuted so that he may be released from Dannemora, was laid before Governor Dix by Hugh J. Bierne, Mr. Whitman's secretary.

When asked why Mortimer L. Schiff was so determined in his opposition to clemency of any kind for Brandt, Howard S. Gans, who, with Alton B. Parker, William F. Sheehan and Paul D. Cravath, has represented Mr. Schiff, replied:

"Mr. Schiff's opposition to the pardon of this man is because of the dastardly character of the plea upon which he bases his application for executive clemency."

Pardon Clerk O. S. Potter has refused to permit the attorneys for Mortimer L. Schiff access to any of the papers filed in the case of Brandt.

The Schiff attorneys wished to learn what form the report of District Attorney Whitman, who has investigated the case, would take. They were anxious first to scan the Whitman report so that they might make a detailed answer to the grounds on which Mr. Whitman is understood to have recommended executive clemency for Brandt.

The District Attorney's report was taken to Albany by Hugh J. Bierne, Mr. Whitman's private secretary.

Cannot See Whitman's Report.

"It is not the practice of the executive department to make public any of the papers in a case like that of Brandt where an application is made for executive clemency," explained Mr. Potter. "We will not even permit Mr. Schiff's attorneys to see Mr. Whitman's report or any other papers in the case. We will conduct this case just as we do others of a similar nature. The representatives of Mr. Schiff will file their briefs with me and whatever records they may have. I shall then look over all the papers in the case and in due time report to the Governor my recommendations, together with the facts.

"The Governor asked Judge Rosalsky in a letter dated November 17, for all the information he had at hand. We have not received an answer from Judge Rosalsky as yet."

The enormous influence of the entire Prison Department is behind Brandt in his fight for release. To what extent politics may enter into the consideration of Brandt's application has caused considerable speculation. There is a suspicion that a deeper motive than mere sympathy for the ex-valet underlies the activities of some of the men who are said to be engineering the movement to gain his release.

PHELPS FUND NEARS $2,000

Contributions being received by the AMERICAN and other newspapers for the relief of Mrs. Silas N. Phelps have swelled the fund for the widow of the man executed last week to $1,870.70.

The amounts received were mostly small but the money was given with the very best of feeling and regret that the senders could not bestow more. The letters covered a wide field and indicated that all over New England hearts have been touched by the unusual circumstances in which Mrs. Phelps and her six children find themselves.

Most of the writers seem to feel that if others contribute to the fund an amount large enough to remove the family from its present imperfect shelter and give it quarters in the city and opportunities for an education for the children can be secured. It is the prayer of many of the women contributing to the fund that this may be accomplished.

BURGLARS VISIT WOLLASTON HOUSE

While the family was away visiting, the home of Charles B. Swenning, No. 198 Taylor street, Wollaston, was entered by thieves last night and four gold rings, a silver watch and $5 carried off. Entrance was gained by forcing the back door.

BOWLING STARS STILL COMING

Numerous additions from the fastest bowlers in New England have been added to the Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest by the last mails at hand, while many who have already entered are rolling their five consecutive strings in the preliminary or qualifying round, and the cards are being returned to the AMERICAN by the alley owners and managers.

R. C. Bray sends along his entry in the last batch. In the Mystic Valley League last week he rolled a string of 151, and three strings aggregating 384. This with the Boston pins. With an eye like this there should be no doubt that Bray is capable of smashing out excellent scores with the candles.

Harry Simard of the Crescent team in the Suburban League has, too, come to time with his entry. They say he doesn't need any lessons in finding the head-pin break. Joe Spillane of Dorchester in making his entry writes the contest is certainly fair and square to all.

Bowlers from Greenfield.

Then from the Brunswick alleys, Greenfield, are the entries of Robert Morse, H. H. Robinson, E. Stackhouse, Edward Rice, Isaac Caron, Robert Paterson, George Singler and F. H. Wilcox. Others noted are R. C. Peterson, Jamaica Plain; Chester S. Ferguson, No. 12 Milk street, Boston; John Fisher, Bridgewater; W. G. Parker, No. 14 Haymarket square, Boston; E. A. Lefebare, Samuel Flanders and Franz H. Wasley of Manchester, N. H.; Harry Perrin, Lowell; T. D. Cowen, West Somerville; H. F. Soggins, Portland, Me., and W. S. Keene, one of the stars on the Old Colony Specials of Boston.

Bowlers must bear in mind that they have until February 3 to make their entry in the contest. Fill out the entry coupon printed in another column and return the same to the Bowling Editor, Boston AMERICAN, Boston, Mass.

Each sending in an entry will receive in return mail a card filled out certifying to his being eligible, and this card must given to the alley owner or manager just before the bearer begins to roll his five strings. The alley owner or manager will then, at the conclusion of the bowling, put the scores for each string and total of the five strings on the card, sign the same and have two reputable citizens who have seen the strings bowled, sign their names.

Bowlers must keep in mind that they have only one chance, as after having rolled the five consecutive strings that is all in the preliminary or qualifying round. The highest pinfall will win the final. Twenty strings in the final, ten strings rolled on consecutive nights.

Entrants in the contest have the right to bowl their five strings over any one of the alleys named in the following official list:

POINT TO CITY BOY'S CHANCES

Arguments in the AMERICAN'S Country Boy Contest are growing more and more emphatic. While the country boy has the greatest number of adherents, many contestants declare that the greater opportunities afforded in the large cities more than offset any advantages that the country has to offer.

Total prizes of $75 in gold and theatre boxes and seats are given for the best 150-word answers to the question: "Which boy has the greatest natural opportunity for success in life, the city or the country boy?"

The contest was suggested by the comedy by Edgar Selwyn, "The Country Boy," now running at the Park Theatre.

Answers to the questions should be limited to 150 words. Write on one side of the paper only. Sign your name and full address. Each reply should contain one good example, taken from life, to show that the writer's opinion is based on the actual personal achievement of some successful man.

There will be a series of weekly prizes and a series of grand prizes at the end of the contest. The weekly prizes, awarded at the end of each week of the contest, will be: First, $10 in gold; second, one box (six seats) for "The Country Boy" at the Park Theatre, good for Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday following the announcement of the award; third, one pair of seats for "The Country Boy" on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday.

There are four sets of weekly prizes, one set for each of the four weeks of the contest. At the end of the contest the grand prizes will be awarded. The grand prizes are: First, $20 in gold; second, $10 in gold; third, $5 in gold; fourth, one box (six seats) for "The Country Boy."

Address letters to Country Boy Editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 82 Summer street, Boston.

Among the answers to the Country Boy question are the following:

The Mayor's Success.

Editor AMERICAN:

I think the city boy has a better opportunity for success in life. In the first place the city boy is nearer schools and colleges. He has the advantage of taking frequent visits to public libraries and other places of learning which the country boy has not. If a country boy has the means, which I think very few have, he might be able to attend a school and there obtain some education. In order that the city boy has the best opportunity he must also have ambition, which mostly every city boy has from constantly speaking to learned people, who have gone before him, and by talking with friends whose fathers may be learned. The examples I give for a noted successful man is Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston. He was born and brought up in that large city and has turned out to be a success.

FREDERICK DEVANNA.
No. 115 West street, Malden.

Gymnastics in Cornfield.

Editor AMERICAN:

The boy from the country stands the best show of winning success.

First, he is strong in body, having practised gymnastics in the potato patch and corn field.

Second, he is self reliant, having been used to driving the horses and cattle and always relying on his own resources for pleasures.

Third, he can resist temptations as he has had good home training and when he gets out in the world is not afraid to say NO. Of course much depends on the boy himself and of what stuff he is made, for "Lives of great men reached and kept were not attained by sudden flight, but they while their companions slept were toiling upward through the night."

FROM COLUMBUS TO PRESENT DAY

Ever since Christopher Columbus set foot on the soil of the New World America's history has been a very interesting one. Since the foundation of the great Republic of the United States its history has been nothing short of marvelous. It has excited the attention and admiration of the whole world.

The history of our country is replete with incidents and happenings that form a galaxy of events that is hard to equal in any country in the world.

One of the three books included in the AMERICAN'S splendid book offer is "Croscup's United States History, With Synchronic Charts." This work covers the history of the United States from its beginning. It is a work which is believed to be one of the most original and valuable single-volume works ever presented to the American people.

Hardly a day passes but something of interest happens in some part of our vast possessions that go to make up the history of America. How many of us are familiar with even a bare outline of the nation's history? How often we have to keep in the background when a party of our friends are talking of historic events?

In "Croscup's United State History," you can pick out almost at a glance any part of the country's history. You can get it by clipping the coupon that appears in the AMERICAN every day.

SNOW SHOVELLER KILLED BY TRAIN

Michael Dunlap of South Boston was killed by an outbound passenger train while shovelling snow on the Plymouth division tracks of the New Haven railroad at the towerhouse curve on Southampton street at 9:45. This curve has been the scene of previous deaths of railroad men. Dunlap was forty-five years old, single and lived on West Fourth street. He was instantly killed when hit by the train. George Bishop, towerman on duty, saw the tragedy and telephoned police headquarters. The body was taken to City Hospital morgue.

FOOTBALL FIELD FOR BELFAST MEETING

BELFAST, Jan. 30.—After a vain search for a hall, the Belfast Liberal Association has had to be satisfied with the Celtic Club football field for the home rule meeting on February 8, at which Winston Spencer Churchill, the First Lord of the Admiralty, is to speak. It has been also decided, with a view to lessening the risk of a conflict, to hold the demonstration at midday instead of at night, as was previously intended. The Celtic Club football grounds are situated in the centre of the Nationalist quarter of the city.

HOW THIN PEOPLE MAY PUT ON FLESH

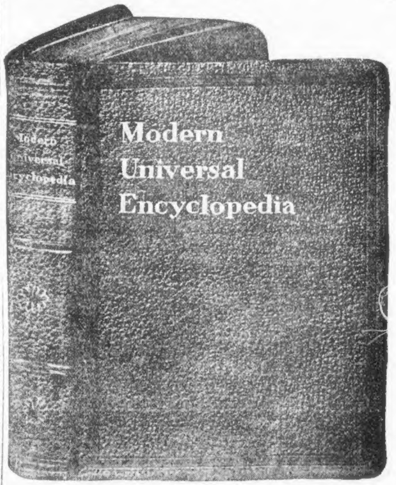
Great Discovery by Eminent Specialist.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing the arms, neck and bust and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness, and it, therefore, gives us real pleasure to publish herewith a simple prescription which, by correcting faulty metabolism and stimulating the activity of certain sluggish vital organs, quickly produces a marvelous transformation in the appearance: the increase in weight frequently averaging from 4 to 5 pounds the first week, and very rarely less than 2. This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Catarrh, dyspepsia and nervousness, which nearly always accompanies excessive thinness, all gradually disappear; dull eyes become bright and pale cheeks glow with a bloom of perfect health.

The prescription, which contains no dangerous drugs and is absolutely harmless, calls for 2 oz. Tincture Cardamoms Compound, 2 oz. Fluid of Saltsyrn, 2 oz. Elixir of Calisaya and enough water to fill an 8-oz. bottle, and can readily be prepared by any druggist. One or two tablespoonfuls should be taken about 20 minutes before each meal. Eat all you want, but chew your food thoroughly.

Inquiry develops the fact that this prescription is frequently filled at the Riker-Jaynes Drug Stores in this city, and by other prominent central city druggists, and we are led by their statements to add the following:

(CAUTION: Although the above prescription is unequaled for relieving nervousness, indigestion and catarrhal troubles it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.)



"The real part of many a bulky volume could be put in a small pamphlet."
—ADDISON

RECOGNIZING the fact that 75% of the subjects treated in the large, many-volumed, and expensive Encyclopedias will never be referred to by the people who purchase them, and that of the remaining 25% not half of it is intelligible to the average reader, the AMERICAN after a long and careful search has secured an Encyclopedia containing all that the business man, the clerk, the mechanic, the teacher or the student will ever have need to refer to.

IN this volume you will find all you want to know about everything you want to know, treated in a simple, concise, accurate and attractive manner, so that the information required can be found readily and at a moment's notice. It is an Encyclopedia intended to tell you in the purest and simplest English what you want to know rather than to impress you, by the use of ponderous, technical and scientific words and phrases, with the great learning of the writers.

MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG,
SICK WOMEN WELL.

For over 40 years this celebrated remedy has been making women's lives happier—healthier—safer.

Many thousands of women have testified to its wonderful effect.

The "Favorite Prescription" is

THE ONE REMEDY that can be depended upon when there is any derangement of the distinctly feminine organism. It purifies, heals, soothes, builds up.

THE ONE REMEDY which absolutely contains neither alcohol (which to most Women is rank poison) nor injurious or habit-forming drugs.

THE ONE REMEDY which is so perfect in its composition and so good in its curative effects as to warrant its makers in printing its every ingredient, as they do, on its outside wrapper, verifying the same under solemn oath.

It is needed when backaches make life miserable—when a sickening, dragging, bearing-down feeling makes work a weary agony—when sick headache, nervous irritability, loss of energy and appetite indicate derangement of the womanly organism. It is a purely vegetable compound, being a glyceric extract from native medicinal roots and can not injure in any condition of the female system.

BRITAIN'S NAVY A SHAM, SAYS BERESFORD'S BOOK

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Admiral Lord Charles Beresford's long expected book, "The Betrayal," reached the hands of the public to-day in an abridged and amended form, the first edition having been suppressed at the urgent request of the Government. The book, however, contains statements and criticisms that are bound to attract the attention of the civilized world and to cause grave concern among the people of the nations who boast a powerful modern navy.

It is the chapter on the dreadnought type of battleship that makes the extraordinary assertion that the "British Admiralty have betrayed their trust" by building these fighting monsters in order to arouse public enthusiasm and distract attention from real conditions in the British navy, and implies that other nations who believed the sham and have adopted the same policy are simply dupes of a clever campaign of advertisement.

"Public Hypnotized."

Lord Charles declares the dreadnought policy was "introduced to the public by means of an organized system of advertisements in the press," and says:

"The public were and are hypnotized by the Dreadnought policy. The excessive and vulgar advertisement lavished upon this experimental vessel was by no means justified. The effect of that advertisement not only led the British public into a delusion from which they are still suffering, but created natural irritation among foreign powers.

"In 1906 the tradition of dignity and courtesy hitherto prevailing in the service was rudely violated and Great Britain proclaimed herself the bully of the seas.

"All that the British Admiralty had accomplished was to publish a new design just in time to enable other nations to profit by its defects.

A Present to Future Enemy.

"To the building of these great ships, necessary as it has become, has been sacrificed every other naval requirement: men, small cruisers, docks and stores. Without an adequate provision of these essentials the battle fleet is useless for fighting purposes, and the money spent on it is a present to the future enemy.

"But the admiralty succeeded in concentrating attention upon battleships called the Dreadnoughts. That is the delusion of the Dreadnought policy. Other essentials do not show. Their need is known only to naval officers. The public naturally know nothing of them. They trust the admiralty to provide what is necessary."

The reasons for the absolute withdrawal of the first edition through government intervention for a modification and correction of certain portions of the book are stated on good authority to be that it contained a statement that in July last England and Germany were on the very verge of war, and that a change of policy in the Admiralty and the establishment of a war board made the criticisms of the Admiralty by Lord Charles untimely.

A Scathing Indictment.

But even in the revised and expurgated edition of "The Betrayal" Lord Charles presents in sweeping terms and without modulation of phrase a scathing indictment of British naval policy between the years 1902-'09, coupled with sensational statements and charges and personalia of much interest.

Concerning the threatened war with Germany, Lord Charles, in a postscript to the chapter on "Organization for War," says:

"As I am passing these pages for press, a flagrant instance of the lack of organization for war occurs at a time when hostilities might break out at any moment between Germany and this country.

"Owing either to ignorance or (let us hope) to patriotism, the state of things passed almost wholly unnoticed by the newspapers. Although critical relations had existed for some weeks when the Prime Minister made his important announcement dealing with international affairs, the admiralty were apparently quite unconscious that alike in disposition and subsidiary arrangements the fleet was unprepared for an emergency. So grave was the situation that on July 27 I felt it to be my duty to indicate the facts of the case to the Prime Minister in a letter to which Mr. Asquith returned a courteous reply marked 'private.'"

Shows Relative Strength.

In the early pages of his book Lord Charles gives the following as the situation with respect to large armored ships on April 1, 1914, as a result of the naval policy of the last five years:

	Great Britain.	Germany.	Triple Alliance.
Dreadnoughts	22	16	25
Invincibles	10	5	5
Pre-Dreadnoughts (15 years old).......	23	18	35
Total	55	39	65

"Where is the Two Power Standard?" asks Lord Charles. "Where is the Two to One Standard? Where is the half-as-much-again superiority postulated in the Admiralty memorandum Cd 5539? And what is the policy of His Majesty's government? If it consists in maintaining the Two Power Standard it is an utter delusion. In five years we have forfeited the numerical predominance we held in 1905. It is for Parliament to compel ministers to a definite declaration of policy. If Parliament fails in its duty the country must take the consequences."

Lord Charles takes no account of the Dominion ships. He says:

"As matters stand it must be said—however disagreeable the task—that the Dominion's navies cannot be reckoned among the effective naval force of the empire."

Not Prepared for War.

He declares that the fleet had seldom been less adequate, and says:

"We possess no proper organization for war, nor can we obtain it until a War Staff is established at the Admiralty; but until we have organized the fleet for war our excellent officers, our skilled crews and fine ships are liable to be sacrificed in the most bitter of all sacrifices, that by which nothing is gained; while—what is of less moment—our money may all be spent in vain.

"The naval policy of the years 1902 to 1909 was mistaken in every particular. The results of that policy are still evident. The cruiser force has not been upon foreign stations; the protection of trade routes is still dangerously inadequate; the foreign stations have not been restored; graving docks have not been provided on the East Coast, and the short service system is still in force. None of these deficiencies can be remedied on the outbreak of war by improvised means.

Country Being Defrauded.

"Our published issues of strategy are supposed to be an attempt to mislead the foreigner, whereas they are really an endeavor to confuse our own people to serve the ends of party politicians.

"The public are deliberately kept in ignorance.

"The country is being defrauded.

"The admiralty are now trying partially to remedy errors; but so far as can be discovered they have devised no definite plan of operations. The evils have gone too deep to be cured by palliatives and half measures.

"The principles of sea power do not change. It is one of those principles that the defence and patrol of the empire require a large force of comparatively small vessels. Nothing can alter that necessity. In 1904 it was recklessly ignored. The power of the fleet was greatly weakened.

"Given a certain number of men, there can be a certain number of ships. But the public demand ships as concrete objects which they can understand. They do not demand men and officers. Therefore it was decided to effect illegitimate and contemptible economies in the very life of the fleet by systematic undermanning.

"I said privately at the time, and I say publicly now, that the home fleet was a fraud on the public and a danger to the state. During the two years which elapsed before the fraud was finally abandoned so grave was the disorganization, demoralization and confusion that had this country been suddenly attacked the navy, in my opinion, would have suffered an initial reverse, if not crushing defeat."

Miss Ivy Gordon-Lennox Named Maid of Honor by Alexandra

The Honorable Ivy Gordon-Lennox, Queen Alexandra's new maid of honor, is the only daughter of Lord and Lady Gordon-Lennox.

HON. IVY QUEEN'S MAID OF HONOR

Society is interested to-day in the announcement that Queen Alexandra has appointed Miss Ivy Gordon-Lennox, only daughter of Lord and Lady Algernon Gordon-Lennox, who are well known in America, to the post of maid of honor.

Although she is not the daughter of a peer of the realm, she will henceforth be known as the Hon. Ivy Gordon-Lennox. The appointment also carries with it a salary of $1,500 a year and many privileges at court.

The Hon. Ivy will wear the bejeweled initials and crown of her royal mistress fastened to the left shoulder of her corsage when in evening dress, as a badge of office. On the occasion of her wedding, she will receive a very handsome gift of jewelry from the Queen, instead of the usual present of $5,000 for her trousseau.

Only during the Queen's residence in London, and on her yachting trips, will the Hon. Ivy be in attendance on her. She will be relieved of duty while the Queen is at Sandringham. While she is in London, she will live with her parents and will have a royal carriage at her disposal to bring her to and from Marlborough House.

Only one restriction will be placed upon her. Queen Alexandra, on several occasions, has made it plain that she has strenuous objections to exaggeration in the matter of coiffure, frocks and hats, and the Hon. Ivy will be obliged to comply with the views of her gracious mistress in this respect.

The Countess of Warwick, sister of Lady Algernon Gordon-Lennox, incurred the Queen's displeasure, but the prejudice did not extend to the other members of Lady Warwick's family, as the Queen showed by conferring the singular honor on Hon. Ivy. The new maid of honor is a very attractive girl, and is very popular.

MRS. LARZ ANDERSON BUILDS FINE STABLE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Followers of humane societies find a good example in Mrs. Larz Anderson, wife of the American minister to Belgium, who is en route to this country to spend the rest of the ante-Lenten season in Washington. Mrs. Anderson, like some of the good fairies in her modern fairy tales, loves horses and dumb animals and has built a two hundred thousand dollar stable back of her palatial Massachusetts avenue residence. The equine aristocrats who inhabit the marble stable, perfect in appointment and a real horse paradise, must be the envy of their humbler comrades of the street.

CREMATE BODY OF MURDERER WOLTER

NORTH BERGEN, N. J., Jan. 30.—A handful of ashes is all that remains of Albert Wolter, the young murderer who went to his death at Sing Sing Prison. Accompanied by mother and father, the body was taken to the crematory here. It was placed in a retort, and forty-five minutes later the ashes were poured in an urn and turned over to the weeping parents.

WALTHAM GIRL DRINKS POISON

Lilla Harwood, sixteen, attempted to end her life at her home, No. 2 Lawton place, Waltham, by drinking a quantity of disinfectant. Promptness on the part of a physician who was called probably saved her life. The girl insisted upon attending a local moving picture theatre and her mother went to the theatre and took Lilla home. It was after reaching home that she made the attempt on her life. She is reported out of danger.

RHEUMATISM GONE

This Maine Man's Hands Were Swollen and Useless and His Heart Was Affected.

Rheumatism defies any treatment that does not build up and purify the blood. The poisons of rheumatism are in the blood and it is only through the blood that the disease can be fought successfully.

Unless the blood is weak and impure, rheumatism cannot get a foothold. When it does the thin and impure blood is not strong enough to overcome the poisons alone. It must be strengthened and purified. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the best blood-building medicine you can take. They make new blood with every dose and promptly check further progress of the disease. They make the blood so pure and strong that not the least trace of rheumatism remains.

Mr. D. Warren Hadlock, whose address is R. F. D. No. 1, Kennebunkport, Me., says: "I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People because they are the best blood medicine in the world. I was almost a cripple with rheumatism as a result of exposure while working in a saw mill and suffered for four years. The rheumatism was in my hands, arms and shoulders. My hands would swell to an abnormal size and the pain in my fingers and wrists was so intense that I would have to cry. I was unable to use my hands even to comb my hair. I was practically helpless. The pains were sharp and knife-like. During the latter part of my sickness my heart was affected. I was treated by several doctors and was given treatment with electricity. They all thought they could cure me but, although I was under the care of a doctor for the greater part of four years, I received but little help. A neighbor urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People as they had cured her of rheumatism. I finally did so and was cured after a thorough treatment with them. The pills were the first thing that had ever done me any good and my cure is permanent."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the blood's greatest aid in overcoming rheumatism, headaches, anaemia, chlorosis, and after-effects of the grip and fevers.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," will be sent upon request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes, $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

The models are all up-to-date, in low, medium and high bust styles, each showing the new straight line Parisian effect.

There are lengths and sizes to suit every figure.

The luxury-loving woman, whether short, tall, slender or stout, can be fitted in a La Vida model that will beautify and perfect her figure, and lend correct style lines to the simplest or most elaborate gown worn over it.

Miss Dowd, the expert corsetiere, is in attendance to demonstrate these world-famous corsets. We will fit and keep in repair free for 6 months every pair of corsets purchased during this sale.

TO INVESTIGATE BUTTER PRICES

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The cause for the high price of butter, eggs and other food products became the subject for Grand Jury investigation here when District Attorney Whitman called as witnesses eight members of the Mercantile Exchange, composed chiefly of butter and egg dealers. Books and records show the fluctuations in the prices of the commodities dealt in were produced by the superintendent of the exchange, which more than a year ago was restrained by injunction from selling figures for New York dealers.

GAS COMPANY WANTS LIGHT ON LOST RIG

The Lynn Gas & Electric Company asked the Lynn police to-day to shed light, if possible, on the disappearance of a dark-bay horse and a dark-red pung, owned by the company. Frank Mace, repair man, left the rig standing on Union street. Some one took it. The horse weighs 1,150, is of chunky build and is worth [illegible].

CLINTON WANTS GRAND TRUNK

All the cities of the Commonwealth along the proposed line of the Grand Trunk extension to Boston are putting themselves on record in favor of the extension of the line into Boston, and about all of them are passing resolutions asking the Grand Trunk to arrange their route if possible so as to include their own cities.

Clinton is the latest city to add its enthusiastic support to the Grand Trunk's petition. The Board of Trade of Clinton is preparing to petition the road for a line running to Worcester from Douglas or from Nashua, in case the Grand Trunk runs a branch from Nashua to Worcester, as well as to Boston, as the plans now call for.

The Clinton Board of Trade realizes that in undertaking the project of securing Grand Trunk service for Clinton it will be necessary to secure the active co-operation of the other cities and towns which would lie in the path of the route the Grand Trunk would take should it decide to come through Clinton.

A thorough and determined effort will be made by the board to secure favorable action on the matter by the Grand Trunk Railway, under the leadership of A. A. Anderson, the newly elected president of the Board of Trade of Clinton.

HOLYOKE WILL FIGHT GOES UP

Counsel for the will of Frank H. Holyoke of Bangor, who left the bulk of his $500,000 estate to his nieces, Madeline and Marjorie Holyoke, twin sisters, now at Dana Hall, Wellesley, scored a point in the will contest at Bangor when the Penobscot Probate Court admitted the instrument to probate as a foreign will. Counsel for the widow, Mrs. Cora M. Holyoke, who is contesting the will, maintained that the will should be probated in Penobscot County as an original one. An appeal is entered for the widow, and the case now goes to the Maine Supreme Court.

WILSON DARE NOT FACE FACTS, SAYS WATTERSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Henry Watterson, in a statement intended to bring a "distasteful episode" to an end, so far as he was concerned, declares that the issue between him and Governor Wilson "was solely as to which one had lied." Colonel Watterson said he "had engaged conclusively to show that Governor Wilson had lied, and charged that the New Jersey executive "dared not face the facts."

Mr. Watterson again declined to make public any proofs in his possession. He denied that he or Thomas F. Ryan ever had been approached for campaign contributions for Governor Wilson, but said the matter had been talked over with Governor Wilson and the latter had "expressed the fear" that if the knowledge of a contribution from Mr. Ryan got abroad it might do more harm than good.

"Dare Not Face Facts."

Colonel Watterson's statement addressed "To the Democrats of the United States" follows:

"The time limit set on my stay in the national capital being about to expire and Governor Wilson having refused my offer as to the issue of veracity he has raised between us, to submit proof of the truth of my averment to party associates competent to judge both of its character and the expediency of its publication, I shall bring this most distasteful episode to a close, as far as I am concerned.

"The claim that I must rush into print with this proof emanates either from the perverse or the malignant. I have it; I am ready, under proper supervision, to produce it, and can be asked in reason to do no more. If I should publish it the very men who are demanding that I would be first to accuse me of reckless disregard of what they would call party prudence and private rights. The sole issue is whether I have lied as Governor Wilson says I have, or he has lied, which I have engaged conclusively to show. He dare not face the facts.

"With as brief a review as may be of the circumstances in which I had the misfortune of having made Governor Wilson's acquaintance, not to mention my indorsement of his plausible, but specious pretensions, I shall cease to trouble the public with a controversy of my seeking."

Colonel Watterson goes on to tell of his first meeting with Governor Wilson at Colonel Harvey's house, and the discussion of the New Jersey governorship. He proceeds:

"The presidential campaign, in which the gubernatorial election had served as prelude, began. In a manner I had been dragooned, I will not say decoyed, into the service of Governor Wilson and Colonel Harvey. The succeeding ten months brought me into confidential relations with Governor Wilson. Letters passed between us. I was his invitation and on his last [illegible] I visited his house in Princeton. He was good enough last Winter to come to [illegible] to see me off for Europe. We were even caught by the inevitable kodak fiend, and pictorialized in the ribald press side by side, making quite a touching group.

Appeals for Money.

"I found him a man of polished manners, scholarly attainments and undeniable talents.

"On my return from abroad the Governor met me in New York. Again in November and December we foregathered there. In short nothing was wanting to the most cordial and unrestrained intimacy.

"I make this detailed statement because the public might well fancy from the Governor's present attitude and tone that I had in some way thrust myself upon him; and that my friendship and support had not been desired by him.

"The fortnight immediately preceding the interview at the Manhattan Club, of which I have been at pains to say as little as was needful to justice between man and man, and men and men, I had done what I could in the interest of his campaign. I was met upon my arrival in New York by a most urgent appeal for money from a gentleman of distinction, closely associated with, if not actually directing, the Wilson organization, and in answer to this I was able at once to secure a considerable sum of money. The meeting at the Manhattan Club was designed still further to push forward and perfect the work of organization. Else why, and for what, was the Governor there?

"To confuse and mislead the public he has latterly adopted a policy of alternate silence and sneering. Giving the lie direct to my statement that I was asked to help the financial end of his campaign, and declining my offer to submit the proof of its truth to a body of gentlemen and Democrats equally concerned with ourselves for the well-being of the party, he thinks to cloud the issue and escape its menace by turning upon me the irresponsible chatter of a literary bureau which claims to live off the immaculate contributions of subscribers having wings, harps and halos, and which has been for weeks flooding the country with every manner of falsification. The very existence of this, to say nothing of the sources of its being, should set honest people to thinking.

"Lie Out of Whole Cloth."

"The Ryan story, which has made such an impression upon the unknowing and unreflecting, was, as far as it related to Colonel Harvey, a lie out of whole cloth. Though Governor Wilson knows this, he has allowed it to circulate without a word of contradiction. The attempt which followed its exposure by me, to make it appear that I have intimated that application was made by Mr. Ryan, is cut off the same cloth, and is characteristic of the duplicity which attaches itself to the entire proceeding of the Governor and his publicity agents.

"The [illegible] of Mr. Ryan was eagerly caught up by these agents. Fancy a politician promptly refusing money from anywhere or anybody! But, when I spoke to Governor Wilson about it, he said some [illegible] of Mr. Ryan, expressing a fear that if the knowledge of such a contribution got abroad it might do more harm than good—an opinion with which Colonel Harvey promptly concurred—and the matter went no further.

"I might have asked Governor Wilson how he could reconcile his objection to Ryan money, which had not yet been offered him, with his demand for Carnegie pension money, which had been denied him. But, although growing a little impatient under his sudden change of demeanor, I did not wish to be disagreeable. Certain it is that Mr. Ryan never heard of the matter. Neither I, nor anyone else, spoke to him on the subject. The effort of the Wilson promoters to revive it and bring it to the front is simply an unprincipled attempt to divert the public attention from the fact that Governor Wilson has been strutting around as a hero because of his indignant rejection of Ryan, the truth being that Ryan was never pressed upon him at all.

"His outrageous repudiation of Harvey, which has put such a feather in his cap, was of a piece with this. Whilst Governor Wilson was receiving popular applause because of his sacrifice of private friendship to public duty, he was grovelling at Harvey's feet after pardon for the senseless and heartless treatment he admitted having bestowed on Harvey at the Manhattan Club. If he possesses a spark of honorable sensibility he will at once demand and require the publication of the abject letters he wrote to Harvey when he was come to understand and realize that he could square the account of ingratitude or take the consequences.

Nomination a Disaster.

"Meanwhile, let me say, that whilst the Governor's tardy repentance may placate the forgiving Colonel Harvey, whilst it may even satisfy the susceptible Mr. Bryan, I refuse longer to follow a lead whose nomination would, in my judgment, be a disaster and whose election a calamity. He who could show himself so disloyal to private friendship cannot be trusted to be loyal to anything.

"Within a single year Governor Wilson's radical changes of base, his realignments and readjustments, personal and political, his offenses to some and apologies to others, have been exactly concurrent with his selfish aims. There seems no abasement into which he is unable to descend with equal facility and grace. May God protect Democracy from such a leader and such leadership!

"I submit to the Democrats of the United States that I am not on trial. I am a candidate for nothing. There is no office within the gift of the government, or the people, the acceptance of which I would so much as consider. My career is behind me. I have pursued it in the light of day. If it does not plead my cause, I cannot plead for myself.

"In the support I gave the candidacy of Governor Wilson, as herein related, I acted for the best, according to the lights about me. In withdrawing that support I must render some sufficient reason to my party associates. That is their right, and it is my right. Why, at my time of life, should I seek to do injustice to any man, or in any wise to mislead the party which, during forty years of storm and stress I have striven so faithfully to serve.

"The niche vacated by Governor Wilson I shall not undertake to fill. I hold nothing in reserve, am backing no other aspirant, advancing no other interest. I shall go to my Winter home in Florida, beyond the reach even of the telegraph, sure that in this matter I have done my duty alike to public obligations and private friendship, and having not a care besides.

(Signed) "HENRY WATTERSON."

HEARST FAVORS CHAMP CLARK FOR PRESIDENT

(From the Baltimore Sun, Jan. 19, 1912.)

William Randolph Hearst, known throughout the country as the owner of a string of papers and regarded in at least three States as a great political factor, declared unqualifiedly for Speaker Champ Clark for President yesterday, while stopping in Baltimore.

Recently the Hearst papers declared for the candidacy of Mr. Clark and an active campaign is about to be started by them, but this is the first personal declaration which Mr. Hearst has made. In a private interview and in his statement yesterday he further emphasized the details which, in his opinion, entitle Clark to the nomination.

"Mr. Clark is the man who has placed the Democratic party in its present position in the Nation," said Mr. Hearst at the Emerson, "and in my judgment he is the one man who can logically head the Democratic ticket at the next election and bring victory.

"It is my serious judgment that the present trend of developments is altogether in favor of Mr. Clark. I do not wish to make any comparisons, nor will I, but even recent events seem to point strongly to the fact that in the end Mr. Clark will be recognized as the right candidate. I am confident that he will be nominated in Baltimore.

"It was only a few years ago when the Democratic party in this country was distrusted by the people. We had a disorganized minority in Congress. I was a member of the House of Representatives myself and I knew something of what the situation was.

Clark's Splendid Leadership.

"It was the splendid leadership of Champ Clark which transformed that disorganized minority into a successful and organized majority. And when by the votes of the people this majority had been placed in power in the House of Representatives it was again the leadership of Mr. Clark which resulted in the tariff pledges being kept and the party throughout the country placed again in position of confidence and trust before the people.

"Democrats in the Nation have a great opportunity now to elect a President. The people are manifesting a desire to place a Democrat in the White House. This is due to one reason and one only and that is that Democrats in the House of Representatives have convinced the people that a Democratic administration is necessary.

"It seems to be logical to assume that when the Democrats are selecting a candidate for the Presidency they should choose the man who has made success possible. It would seem to me to be the better policy for the party to pick out the man to place before the people who has been responsible originally for obtaining the confidence of the people in the party."

"What will be the issues of the campaign in your judgment?" Mr. Hearst was asked.

"The high cost of living will unquestionably be the dominating issue, because no matter what issue either party might try to make, there is only one issue which the people recognize. That is the fact that the cost of living is getting higher each year.

"There are two great divisions of this issue of the high cost of living. One is the tariff and the other is monopolies. Both are the agents responsible for the high prices of commodities at this time. On the tariff Mr. Clark has a record which appeals at once to the justice and to the appreciation of the voters of the country.

"It was Mr. Clark who had the forces of the Democratic party absolutely taut and solid and directed it along the unwavering line to tariff reform."

Clark's Record on Monopolies.

"How about Mr. Clark's record on monopolies?" Mr. Hearst was asked.

"His record in Congress alone is sufficient answer to that. I don't desire to make comparison; but I think that I can say that Mr. Clark's record in opposition to monopolies cannot be assailed. He has the force of character, he has the fairness and justice of temperament and he has the rugged determination to do what the people want regardless of what influence may be brought to bear upon him, to insure to the people that, with him as President, there will be no compromise with Democratic principles of right."

Mr. Hearst was asked what he thought of Colonel Henry Watterson's recital of the Woodrow Wilson-Harper's Weekly controversy, but he only smiled.

"I cannot discuss that," he said, "I don't wish to make any comment on any other candidate for the nomination. I can simply say that it is looking better for Mr. Clark each day."

Mr. Hearst was asked how he liked Baltimore.

"Everybody likes Baltimore," he answered, and he said it in such a serious tone that his meaning took on fresh significance.

"It is such a pretty place," he said. "I know it is quite the usual thing for any visitor to say he likes a city, but I think that everybody likes Baltimore. There are so many green spots. I was surprised at the park system that you have here and while talking with Mayor Preston today I was also surprised to hear how you maintain your parks.

"Requiring the street railways to pay a tax on franchises for maintenance of the parks is a splendid idea. I understand that it has been in vogue in Baltimore for a number of years. I think so well of it that I have determined to make it a part of the program which all of my papers will suggest for the cities in which they are situated."

Mr. Hearst was accompanied by Mrs. Hearst and Colonel John Temple Graves, the former Georgia editor, who is now one of Mr. Hearst's chief assistants in directing the seven papers which he controls. The Hearst papers are published in New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Engages Roof Garden.

With Manager Barr as guide, Mr. Hearst went over the Emerson and selected a suite of rooms on the fifteenth floor for his personal use, and he closed a contract for the use of the entire roof garden as headquarters for his newspaper writers and others who will be in his party during the coming convention. The headquarters of Champ Clark will be on the fifteenth floor.

Mr. Hearst attracted considerable attention while in the lobby of the Emerson. He is over six feet in height and broad, with a suggestion of strength and vigor in his manner. Cartooned and caricatured as often perhaps as any other big figure in the Nation, Mr. Hearst resembled but faintly even the best pictures of himself.

He has a broad, long face, with clear blue eyes, an aquiline nose and a close-lipped, straight-lined mouth that remains tightly closed except when he speaks. His voice is high pitched, more after the southern fashion, yet he speaks musically and quickly, without hesitation.

Many artists have drawn him in many lights. Yesterday he seemed more like a big, sturdy American with a large touch of the West and a slight touch of the East; a man who stands on both feet, knows where he stands and can say so without fuss. He is pleasant to approach, and when talking he seems to throw off the husks of conversation and gets down quickly to the meat of what he wants to explain. His handshake is hearty and his manner extremely Southern in its hospitable concern.

Just as he was about to go in to tea Mr. Robert Crain passed through the lobby and they shook hands cordially, Mr. Hearst expressing delight at the Baltimore boom.

"You have been successful in getting the convention," he said enthusiastically, "and I certainly want to congratulate you. It was fine work."

Guest of Mayor.

The two men chatted for a few minutes and Mr. Hearst went in to join his party at the tea table.

Mr. Hearst, accompanied by Mrs. Hearst and Colonel Graves, came to Baltimore shortly after noon from Washington and went to Mayor Preston's home for lunch, after which Mr. Preston took the party in his automobile for a trip around the park system in the city, explaining the manner in which the parks are maintained and the plans for connecting the various links. After this trip Mr. Hearst and his party drove to the Emerson, where after inspecting the rooms they were the guests of Dr. and Mrs. Isaac E. Emerson at tea. Mr. Hearst left at 5:30 o'clock for New York.

GATE TENDER KNIFED IN FERRY BATTLE

Michael O'Neil, thirty-seven, of No. 15 Chelsea street, East Boston, was disfigured for life in a battle with Domenico De Passio, twenty-three, of No. 50 Border street, East Boston, which took place in the East Boston gate house of the North Ferry, early to-day. De Passio, it is said, was insulting women. O'Neil, who is a gate tender, told him to stop. De Passio is said to have slashed O'Neil across the face with a razor. O'Neil drew his club and beat De Passio into submission. O'Neil was taken to the East Boston Relief Hospital. His face was a mass of cuts, one reaching from the mouth to the ear. De Passio was treated at the hospital for a broken nose and two severe scalp wounds, after which he was locked up, charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

SCHOOL HEAD IS IN BANKRUPTCY COURT

Charles W. Waller, superintendent of schools in Hopkinton, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with the clerk of the United States District Court to-day. His liabilities are $1,437. There are no assets. The claims against him are all for money loans. Among his creditors are four Boston loan houses: W. E. Fay & Company, $266; Mutual Loan Company, $120; Boston Note Brokerage Company, $125; J. N. Schooner, $201. Two other creditors are the Hyannis National Bank, $150, and W. R. Meikle of Waltham, $325.

FIRE-TRAPPED WOMEN RESCUED OVER ROOF

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Five women, penned by flames on the third and fourth floors of the apartment house at No. 145 West Ninetieth street, were rescued to-day by policemen, who carried them up to the roof and then over to an adjoining building. Two of the women were overcome by smoke when the policemen reached them. The other three were hysterical when they were finally carried to the street. The flames, which started in the basement of the apartment house and spread quickly through an air shaft, routed scores of persons in the neighborhood from their homes.

ITALIANS REPLY TO GOV. WILSON

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Italian residents of New York, many of whom are high in business circles, express surprise and indignation after reading the portion of Volume 5 of Governor Woodrow Wilson's book, "History of the American People," in which the author declared Chinese were more to be desired in the United States than Italians, Poles, or Hungarians.

Agostino DeBiasi, editor-in-chief of the Italian Herald, said he had sent a long message to Governor Wilson, asking whether the quotation was correct, and if so to state his ground for making such assertions.

Mr. DeBiasi declared that, pending the receipt of an answer from Governor Wilson he could make no definite statement.

"We will express our opinion," he said, "through the columns of our paper as soon as we receive an answer to our inquiry of Dr. Wilson. We only wish that the judgment of the American people, passed on the immigrant Italians, should be maintained above any party's spirit or influence.

"It is to be deplored that in America the Italian immigrant question is always treated in a partisan light, instead of its real entity of an economical phenomenon that has greatly contributed to develop American prosperity.

"These industrious, honest, hard-working, law-abiding Italian citizens, representatives of that ancient Mediterranean civilization which even to-day so valiantly and triumphantly re-entered through Tripoli into the Dark Continent, should command the attention and respect of all nations."

Cesare Conti, one of the most influential Italian bankers in the United States, was bitter in his criticism of Dr. Wilson's statement.

"If Dr. Wilson made any such statement," declared Mr. Conti, "it was not based upon facts. He knows that in his own State of New Jersey there are thousands of Italians employed who have made themselves invaluable to the manufacturing interests there.

"I do not doubt that Governor Wilson has visited Italy and seen for himself what the Italians are. If he has not I do not see how he has any right to make the statement attributed to him. If he had looked about him in his travels through New Jersey he would have seen the humming factories with its numerous Italian laborers operating the machines. When the Italian comes here he comes with the purpose of working for his living and working hard, if need be. He goes to work on the railroad, on the farm, down in the mines, or in the factory without flinching, and he does not try to work for less than the workman he is competing with.

"In interviews I have had with the employers of Italians I find that one of their principal reasons for employing the Italian is that he is a sober, industrious workman. The employer can always depend that after he has given his workman his salary on a Saturday he will find him back on the job early Monday morning.

"I am indeed surprised and grieved that Dr. Wilson should attack my countrymen in the manner he has. It is terrible to think that he has placed them below the Chinese as to working ability and intelligence."

Antonio Zucca, a wealthy merchant, and active in Democratic politics, said he was amazed by the attacks by Governor Wilson. "I always had a high regard and a great deal of respect for Dr. Wilson," said Mr. Zucca, "but as I get to read some of his works, that feeling toward him is fast losing its hold upon me.

"To attack the immigration of the Italian is criminal. I cannot see how any man can make such an attack on the Italian race as a whole. Of course there are a few bad ones in our race; but you will find them in every race.

"To think of comparing the Chinese with the Italian is an insult to our glorious country.

"I realize that some men form their opinion of a nationality because of the bad things they hear regarding that race, but I am grieved to think that such a man as Dr. Wilson, with all his learning, could be guilty of such an injustice.

"I do not think that he will be nominated for the presidency, especially after writing such a book as he has."

BUSY DAY FOR TAFT IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30.—President Taft, working under the disadvantage of a heavy cold, carried his counter campaign against the Progressives and the followers of Roosevelt into the capital of his home State to-day. Leaving Cleveland at 2:40, the President arrived here shortly after 7 a. m., facing with trepidation an arduous day which included six engagements.

An interesting feature of the day was the program for the dedication of the new federal building. Both President Taft and Governor Judson Harmon were down for speeches.

President Taft let it be known today that Former Governor Myron T. Herrick and Arthur Vorys constitute his choice for the managers of the Taft campaign in Ohio. The President wants Herrick and Vorys to concentrate their efforts in Ohio, operating, however, with Charles D. Hilles or who ever else may be the national manager of the Taft campaign.

In a statement given out here to-day, Arthur I. Vorys said that President Taft would have the solid Ohio delegation at the Chicago convention. He said insurgency would not control a vote from this State.

LACONIA MAKES FAST TIME ON MAIDEN TRIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The Laconia, the latest addition to the Cunard line, has arrived in New York on her maiden voyage. Despite the heavy weather she made an average of more than sixteen knots an hour and showed remarkable steadiness, which is attributed to the Fram Anti-Rolling tanks with which she is equipped. The Laconia has some novel features which have not been employed in other vessels of the Cunard service. One of these is the direct steam-heating plant and the regulation of the heat by thermostats. The new liner is 625 feet long, 72 feet beam and her gross tonnage is 18,100. She was launched July 27.

$89,593.94 SAVED BY BOSTON SCHOOLS

A saving of $89,593.94 for the year ending December 31, 1911, was reported by William Keough, the business agent, at the meeting of the old School Board. Of this amount $61,379.38 was saved on salaries, which David Ellis, chairman of the board, said was due to an astounding falling off in the number of pupils attending school. The total expenditure was $4,277,938.30. The appropriation amounted to $4,365,000.

PLAN RECEPTION FOR PRESIDENT

Sub-committees for the reception of President Taft at the 175th annual banquet of the Charitable Irish Society, to be held at the Hotel Somerset, Monday evening, March 18, and to arrange details of the banquet, were appointed at a meeting of the general committee at Young's Hotel. The following sub-committees were appointed:

TETRAZZINI'S SOLO OPERA HIT

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Tetrazzini appeared at our Opera House last night and sang "The Last Rose of Summer," in English. What do you think of that? She sang it twice, and the tremendous audience rose to it, like the "hoi polloi" at a moving picture theatre.

The unexpected performance of that beautiful melody was only one of a dozen features that illuminated the finest performance of "The Barber of Seville" heard in Boston in recent years.

It is doubtful if anywhere in the world to-day the remarkable cast of last night could be surpassed, or even equalled in this century-old comic opera.

First, there was Tetrazzini to sing Rosina, then there was Constantino, the greatest living Count of Almaviva. Next comes Vanni Marcoux, the new French bass, whose Don Basilio surpassed anything seen here lately, and Fornari, whose thin, smooth baritone is exactly suited to the music of Figaro, the barber. And last, but not least, there was Tavecchio, a buffo who is actually funny, and who can sing the music of Doctor Bartolo.

Century Old Opera.

The "Barber of Seville" was written by Rossini to a libretto adapted from an old French comedy, and was first sung in 1815. It has steadfastly held its place in the repertory of opera houses where great singers are stalled, for it takes great singers to perform the brilliant music of Rossini.

In "The Barber," not only the soprano but the tenor and the baritone, and even the buffo must sing florid music. There is no escape. That is why there are many famous opera houses which never give "The Barber," and the Metropolitan in New York is one. They cannot give it a proper cast.

Its melodies last night sounded as fresh and verdant as ever, and in the face of such brilliant singing the thin and inadequate orchestration passed unnoticed. In Rossini's day they didn't bother much about the orchestra. It was the voices which counted.

"The Last Rose of Summer."

One of the chief reasons for the retention of "The Barber" to the present time is the music lesson scene, because it gives the prima donna a chance to sing her favorite coloratura selection. Rossini wrote music for this scene, but nobody knows where it is, and it has long been the custom for the soprano to select something herself.

Last night Tetrazzini chose Benedict's "Carnival of Venice," a beautiful setting with brilliant variations of an old Italian song.

It was one of Tetrazzini's great nights. Her voice was never more glorious, and her technique more at her command.

Her passage work was positively amazing, and provoked an ovation such as is seldom heard in the Opera House.

Then the lady sprung her surprise. She put on a pair of nose glasses, think of Tetrazzini wearing eye glasses, and opened a sheet of music. The orchestra struck into the prelude to "The Last Rose of Summer."

Then the grand old song was sung as it has not been sung since the days of Patti and the house went wild. Tetrazzini calmed the tumult by agreeing to sing it again, and she sang it a second time just as perfectly.

She did more than sing last night. She proved herself a comedienne of high rank by her dainty and amusing Rosina.

Happy Night for All.

Constantino has sung the Count of Almaviva here many times. His voice was never in better trim for the vocal somersaults, the thrills and the slides that the music required. He shared honors with Tetrazzini for exceptional singing and splendid acting.

And Vanni Marcoux—never was there so amusing a Basilio. He looked like a big, black crow, and his strident basso heightened the illustration. This man is an artist in delivering a song. Despite obvious vocal handicaps he triumphed in his second act aria.

Fornari's best part is Figaro, and he sang it very well. Miss Elvira Leveroni, as Bertha, delivered her aria with fine effect. Tavecchia is inimitable in the role of the jealous old guardian.

The audience simply revelled in the pretty tunes and the fun. It roared with laughter to see Tetrazzini running around the stage with the other singers pelting one another with hats and various missiles, and it got excited over the vocal pyrotechniques of all the singers, just as audiences used to do before they turned grand opera into a series of problem plays with lugubrious music.

AT THE

HENRY F. MILLER

395 BOYLSTON ST.

The only place in Boston where NEW Henry F. Miller pianos can be bought. Other Boston dealers who advertise "Henry F. Miller" pianos have only second-hand ones to show. All of these were advertised recently as "little used," but it proved on investigation to have been in their use for a [illegible] period for nearly twenty-five years. We gladly give to anybody the exact age of any second-hand "Henry F. Miller" piano upon being furnished its number.

In addition to "Henry F. Miller" pianos we have a large and beautiful variety of reliable [illegible] by other makers which we are advertising at lowest prices—$125, $150, $175, $200, $225, $250. Many "canvassers" would ask at least $100 more for any of these. We employ no canvassers; neither do we advertise prices if larger [illegible] easy instalment terms—$10 down and $5 per month. We believe the piano we price at $200 is a better piano than the so-called "four hundred-dollar" piano which is sold under "guaranteed," "correct" or "reliable" schemes. No matter WHAT make you wish to buy, for a piano you cannot afford not to see and hear our offerings. A call at our warerooms will surely protect you from being overcharged elsewhere.

Most important of all, you have the long-continued reliability and integrity of our house behind every transaction. Established 1863. HENRY F. MILLER & SONS PIANO CO.

SAY:

Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—I have been using your "Apartments to Let" column exclusively for the past few weeks for Huntington Hall and have received very satisfactory results. Yours truly, (Signed.) SAMUEL ALTMAN, Prop.

Boston American.

Gentlemen:—In renewing the advertisement of my new apartments at 1293 to 1301 Commonwealth Avenue, Allston District, Boston, I wish to say that the advertisement in the American's Apartment Column has produced most satisfactory results.

Not only were the applications numerous, but the class of people who looked at the suites were tenants that I should be proud to have in any apartments operated by me. Yours very truly,

JOSEPH I. STEWART.

Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—For some time past I have been advertising in your paper under the classification of "Apartments to Let." The results I am getting are very satisfactory and profitable.

As all my apartments and suites are located in the best section of the city, the results prove that the American reaches and is read by all those looking for nice apartments. Yours very truly,

E. J. LEWIS.

NEW PLAYS AND POPULAR REVIVALS AT THEATRES

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

The drama of plain, blunt words, heavy fists and all 'round political corruption drifted into the Majestic last evening and introduced Mr. Holbrook Blinn as a complete star on his own account. It was no kind of an evening for those who enjoy only the shrinking, timid drama of handsome matinee heroes and lovely heroines. There were none of that kind in "The Boss"—it was rough work for everybody concerned in the play.

With his customary style, Edward Sheldon wrote "The Boss" with his sleeves rolled up and his mind fixed on ugly situations. And the result gave last evening's audience a play that was made generally entertaining by the splendid acting of Mr. Blinn. There was a grim kind of humor in Mr. Blinn's portrayal of Michael Regan, and the actor threw himself into the role with unerring skill. It was Mr. Blinn's night by a solid vote of the house and the play profited accordingly.

Mr. Sheldon began his play with an almost preposterous, but not entirely new situation—that of the ill-bred, corrupt boss of the Fourth Ward demanding the hand of Emily Griswold as the price of saving the girl's father from ruin. Regan was a rough customer, who dealt with rough men, but a glimpse at the girl had kindled that tender feeling in his heart. When the girl accepted the dreadful terms and declared that the marriage would terminate at the ceremony, you were carried back to the good old melodrama, "Wife in Name Only."

And so the play started, with Emily trying to lift her coarse husband to her own level of thought, and he clinging to the old life, but trying to win her affection. You can readily see what a tough route Regan was traveling.

And then there was the awful strike, with Emily's brother leading Regan's own employes against him, and with women and children starving and general unhappiness for everybody. Up to this period Emily had tolerated Regan and held him in certain admiration for his physical power of carrying things to a successful issue. Just then, however, Emily's brother stopped a rapidly moving brick with the side of his head and the finger of guilt pointed at Regan. Poor Regan—he had given positive orders to his strong-arm men not to hurt brother Donald. But when the accident happened not a blessed soul would believe him—not even Emily, who called him hard names and left his house. Out of a comfortable cell in jail Regan viewed his past life through a new set of glasses. If the bruised brother died it might send him to the chair, but he didn't care. The brother didn't die, however, and it all came out that Regan was really reforming, which brought about a soft scene in the last act in which Emily lets Regan have his first kiss. She had really found a hero—a hero whose speech was thick with bad grammar and who wore his derby with a distinct starboard slant.

The performance of Mr. Blinn will stand as one of the most interesting and gripping characterizations of the season. He was the uncultured, corrupt boss to a degree that seemed suspiciously natural, and he captured his audience with ease. Miss Maud Feeley led an unhappy life as Emily, which partially atoned for the moments when her acting seemed a trifled strained.

"The Boss" tears a dark page from municipal life and presents it in lurid colors. To Mr. Blinn, however, belongs the credit of making the performance not only enjoyable, but one to be pleasantly remembered. He is an actor who knows his art.

The Shubert

Middle-aged persons who read these few lines will doubtless recall the days in the late '70s when they were members of some theatrical amateur "Pinafore" company. And if any of these middle-aged persons were at the Shubert Theatre last night no doubt they could hardly resist the temptation to go right up on the stage to help out. Not that the performers needed any assistance. The "all-star" cast was very well capable of interpreting the satire of the late Sir W. S. Gilbert and the remarkable music of the late Sir Arthur Sullivan. Old-time Bostonians connect Sir Joseph Porter with George Wilson and Henry Clay Barnabee, Captain Corcoran with Myron Whitney, Ralph Rackstraw with Tom Karl, Dick Deadeye with George Frothingham, and so on.

It was strange to see and hear the effervescent DeWolf Hopper as the humpbacked sailor who is so unpopular with his shipmates and so popular with the audiences, but the celebrated comedian made a great deal of his opportunities as Dick Deadeye.

Mr. Hopper is one of our very few singing comedians, and it was a pleasure to hear him in "The British Tar" and "Kind Captain."

Quite unexpectedly, he did not try to improve on Gilbert's lines, and only offended once, and that was when he insisted upon being called "Richard Expiredoptic."

The lines of Mr. Carleton necessitated a change in the cast, Mr. Richard Temple assuming the part of Sir Joseph Porter in a very acceptable manner.

Eugene Cowles made his one solo, "He Is An Englishman," count. George J. MacFarlane was a rather loud Captain Corcoran. Arthur Aldridge was a splendid Ralph Rackstraw in every way.

Mabel Weeks sang well as Josephine, and Viola Gillette was a very acceptable Little Buttercup.

Behind the principals was a full chorus and in front an adequate orchestra. Musically the performance could hardly have been improved upon.

There is to be a composers' concert in Boston within a few days. The composers are advised to visit the Shubert Theatre this week and see how a song should be begun and how it should be ended. Arthur Sullivan's music never offends. One never tires of Gilbert's books.

Hollis.

Two factors will be particularly agreeable to audiences which attend the performances of "The First Lady of the Land" at the Hollis. One is Elsie Ferguson, the star, in the role of Dolly Todd, later Dolly Madison, hence the title of the play. The other gratifying feature is that Miss Ferguson is on the stage nearly every minute of the four acts. The action of the historical comedy by Charles Nirdlinger revolves around the loves of Aaron Burr and James Madison for Dolly Todd, the witching Philadelphia widow and the widow's preferment of Madison, though tremendously fascinated by Burr. The insistent courtship of the two powerful men for the noted beauty of a century ago provides a romance picture which finds delightful frame in the gallant and witty atmosphere of Colonial days. Miss Ferguson satisfies her audience vastly in her impersonation of Dolly Todd. History gives the Philadelphia Quakeress the reputation of great charm, mental and physical. As Miss Ferguson talked and smiled and was wooed and won on the theatre stage, she was, judging by the applause of the audience, prettily cast in a pretty role.

Outside of the romance element the comedy is entertaining. The historical interest is high, especially in the parts of Burr and Madison. These are done extremely well by Frederick Berry and Lowell Sherman. The other characters are played with due worth, particularly that of the snippy Lady Merry by Florence Edney.

Greater Boston gets an unexpected rap in the lines when Dolly Todd, as a lady of metropolitan Philadelphia, alludes to the possible re-election of John Adams, and adds what a pleasant change any society would be to that of "Quincy, Mass."

Keith's.

The Princess Rajah, the wonderful oriental dancer, tops the bill at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week. Princess Rajah in the Cleopatra dance uses a live snake which twines around her body as she goes through the various evolutions of the dance, emulating the Ancient Egyptian Queen upon receiving the news of Mark Antony's death at her palace.

The costumes worn by Princess Rajah surpass anything of their kind ever seen upon a vaudeville stage in Boston and combined with her grace and lithesomeness the dance creates a lasting impression.

Bert Leslie, "The King of Slang," is appearing in another of the Hogan sketches, "Hogan the Painter." The vehicle is particularly adapted to Leslie's original style of comedy and he gets many a laugh. He is assisted in the piece by W. J. Ferguson.

Blackface Eddie Ross is making his first appearance in Boston. He is a comedian and banjoist of the first water and besides being a good story teller is an excellent dancer. He also possesses a fine voice and can whistle.

In "From Uncle Tom to Vaudeville," Fay, Two Coleys and Fay have a riot of fun and song. The idea of the sketch is new and the wealth of comedy it contains makes the piece a welcome addition to the bill.

The Ishakara Brothers do some wonderful Japanese acrobatic stunts, William Gould and Belle Ashley have some live songs; Leon and Adeline Sisters are good in their "Original Melodies," Mae and Belle Connolly, character comediennes, and Diers and Howard, acrobatic clowns with the pictures complete one of the best vaudeville bills presented in Boston this season.

Castle Square.

If the enthusiasm that last night greeted "The Product of the Mill" at the Castle Square Theatre is a fair expression of opinion of its merits, this new Harvard-Radcliffe prize play is assured of lasting success. It was the first production on any stage of a remarkably interesting play by Elizabeth Apthrop McFadden, the Radcliffe student, whose cleverness won the $500 prize offered by John Craig; and the second college student's work to be produced in two years by the Craig players.

The play is intensely interesting to the end, telling a story of the theft of a little boy by the half-brother of the child's father, out of motive of revenge; of the years of search for the little fellow by his heart-broken parents and of a happy reunion. From a Christmas celebration at home in New York to the realistic cotton mills scene in the South, covering the theft, search for and recovery of the boy, there is a revelation of the very highest order of stage production, complimentary to the playwright and the strong, clever and versatile Craig company.

"The Product of the Mill," with its series of emotional pictures, mirrors life truthfully and mingles with its seriousness and pathos just a blend of real humor. It has all that makes a great play and ought to take its place among the greatest plays of the day.

Mary Young does her best work of the season as Ruth Carman, mother of Skinney Hinks who was portrayed by Henrietta McDaniel, who, with Madelina Moore as Betty Hinks, shared in the honors of the evening. Mr. Craig as Henry Carman, Mr. Hassell as old Hinks, Mr. Walker as Clay Buckington and others in the cast were excellent.

It was a big and brilliant audience, every seat being taken. Speeches by Mr. Craig, Miss Young and others were demanded and Miss McFadden, the playwright, bowed her acknowledgments of the generous applause. Miss Young and others received beautiful floral pieces.

"The Product of the Mill" will be the attraction next week.

Boston Theatre.

They say this age is money mad. Perhaps that explains the extreme popularity of Winchell Smith's comedy, "The Fortune Hunter," which opened a second Boston engagement at the Boston Theatre last night. Explain it how you will, however, that the piece is one of the most popular and deservedly successful comedies of recent days is not to be denied.

The story has become familiar by now. How Nat Duncan, discouraged at the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, determined on a desperate expedient. How, in this mood, he was found by a friend, who gave him a recipe, infallible, if one followed the rules, for becoming rich. How then Nat prepared to follow the recipe, and how, when his cake was all ready for the eating, he cast it aside and seized another, ready made, that stood beside it, and wed, instead of the designing heiress, the simple daughter of the lovable old druggist to whom he had brought prosperity.

It is a play that appeals, especially as the hero does get a measure of financial success, in spite of his spurning of the heiress.

Jack Barrymore created the part of Nat in Boston. He is replaced in the present company by Will Deming, thoroughly competent, and successful in presenting the role. The other characters mixed humor and pathos in just the right proportions, and from the first acts, and Nat's apartments, to the rain storm that brings down the curtain, the audience was led by the actors through a simple and delightful evening.

Globe Theatre.

If there has been any doubt in the Globe Theatre management's mind as to the popularity of the new vaudeville policy, it would have been dispelled yesterday. The big crowds all day long and the warmth in the reception to each feature gave positive assurance of success.

The program was most interesting. Harry Jackson and company had a comedy playlet that was really clever in lines, and which was scenically heavy for a vaudeville production. La Belle Clark and her horse, Grand Duke, offered a pleasing novelty in "dumb" acts. "Duke" proved a wonder and the little dog and doves added a lot of interest to the clever performance. Adams, Mack and Roy, the "Mirthful Magicians," created a lot of laughter and incidently a lot of wonderment at their comic magic tricks. The Lyceum Trio, three young men with excellent voices, had a laughable skit called "Fun on the Ocean." Tobin, the juggler; Adams and Giroux, in a singing and dancing specialty; The Rays, The Song Review and the several thousand feet of new pictures made a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

National Theatre.

An exceptionally fine bill, made up of high class vaudeville acts with plenty of variety, pleased big audiences at the National Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night. Encores and curtain calls were frequent and every act was enthusiastically received.

The songfest made its usual big hit, with thousands joining in on the vocal chorusing. Will Dillon, the "Man with a Thousand Songs," put several new ones from among his compositions over the footlights and won the plaudits of his hearers. He was kept busy answering the calls for more and made good. Beldon, Chapple and company had to come on for curtain calls so well did their act take. The company appeared in Milo Beldon's farce, "Oh, Doctor."

Lloyd and Whitehouse proved winners with an act that went big. Frey twins appeared in a clever athletic act that was both novel and entertaining. Barnes and King, burlesque magicians, kept things humming with their work. Josephine Isleib and company scored with their singing act. Belle Oura captured her audience and proved herself a capable entertainer. Others who helped out in the medley of entertainment were C. W. Bradley and A. Fred Phillips.

Grand Opera House.

The musical comedy, "McFadden's Flats," always a favorite at the Grand Opera House, opened its week's stay at the South End play house last night and for three acts the audience was furnished with one continuous laugh.

The play has been revised by the authors until it is now nearly a new play. The new version, however, is more mirth-provoking than the old. Jack Lampe as Tim McFadden, a power in the politics of the ward, and Jacob Bumgardner, another politician, both of whom are after control of the city ward, and the love of Mrs. Murphy are as clever as ever.

The "Yellow Kids," played by Tommy Wiener and Jerry D. Sullivan are very clever in their acting. The baseball satire meets with popular favor and causes many laughs. Jack Davis gives one of the best performances ever seen in this city on roller skates.

The show has many late and catchy songs and is interspersed with many clever dances.

Orpheum Theatre.

Miss Pearl Tangley gave a remarkable exhibition of mind reading at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. Miss Tangley's act was one of the most gratifying that has been seen at the Orpheum for some time. There were many other features on the bill, including both vaudeville and motion picture novelties.

Premier Theatre.

Two especially attractive pictures were shown at the Premier Theatre yesterday. One was the arrival of Cardinal Farley in New York and the other was a picture play made from the widely popular "East Lynne." Both were exceptional specimens of good photography. The "East Lynne" film cannot be shown after to-morrow. The singers gave a new programme, which included a list of Irish songs that caught the fancy of the day's audience.

Howard Athenaeum.

"The Lady Buccaneers" made things lively at the Old Howard yesterday, with John Hanson carrying most of the burden of fun. Besides the spirited farce and the twenty sprightly girls a list of especially engaged vaudeville acts were also contributed. One of the features of the vaudeville side of the performance was Lonnie Follett, a boy mimic, who impersonates several stage favorites.

Austin & Stone's.

DeBlake's monkey and dog circus contributed much of the new curio hall entertainment at Austin & Stone's Museum yesterday. The Great Gagnon, head balancer, was also on the list and presented a surprising novelty.

Gaiety Theatre.

Sam Howe's "Lover Makers" was the attraction that drew two big audiences to the Gaiety yesterday. While the show was typical of its class in burlesque, it had the additional quality of being enlivened with pretty girls and a half dozen good vaudeville features. One of the best acts in the entertainment was supplied by twenty pretty diving girls in a number called "O'Devio," imported from the Winter Garden in Berlin. Few burlesque shows in a season's run equal "The Love Makers" in entertaining features.

Scenic Temple.

New vaudeville numbers and several timely motion picture subjects made up the program at the Scenic Temple yesterday. A concert was given by Lenna Howe's Orchestra.

Hub Theatre.

There was a wide variety to the new bill at the Hub Theatre yesterday. Several vaudeville features and a new list of motion pictures made up the program.

Waldron's Casino.

Max Spiegel and his "College Girls" moved into Waldron's Casino Theatre yesterday to begin a week's funmaking. The show possessed all that burlesque can yield in the form of sprightly comedy, lively music and pretty girls.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

The feature act in the new bill at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday was at least seasonable. It was Prince Emiel and his ten polar bears. Several other novelties were on the program.

Plays That Remain.

"The Country Boy" continues on its jolly way at the Park Theatre. Crowded houses are the rule.

"The Pink Lady" has lost none of its charm and the Colonial Theatre is enjoying unexcelled prosperity.

The second week of "The Herfords" at the Plymouth began yesterday. Miss Viola Allen is happily cast in this play.

"The Follies" continue to draw big houses at the Tremont Theatre. Bert Williams is the big laugh of the show.

Plays to Come.

"Baron Trenck," a new comic opera, will come to the Shubert Theatre next week.

"The Goose Girl" will be the next attraction at the Grand Opera House.

ARTHUR HOWE IS VOTED MOST POPULAR SENIOR AT YALE

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 30.—Yale seniors' votes for the most noted members of their class have been announced. Raymond Parker of Willimantic won in the competition for the laziest member, and Daniel Grant Tomlinson of New York was voted the spriest. Robert Loree, the 265-pound football guard, captured the vote as the best-natured member. Dick Merritt of Nyack was voted the best athlete. Arthur Howe, football captain, was voted the member of the class most to be admired, the most popular member, and the man who has done most for Yale.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

N. Y. CENTRAL LEADS STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—New York Central reached the maximum figure of its present movement at the opening of the stock market to-day, selling at 111½, a gain of 1½ over last night's close. Although there was some irregularity in the early trading, leading stocks showed pronounced strength and some substantial gains were made in addition to that of New York Central.

Reading advanced ⅞, and a gain of ⅝ was made in Union Pacific. United States Steel common opened from 63¼ to 63½, a gain of ⅞. Lehigh Valley was also in good demand after opening unchanged and an advance of one full point was registered. The copper stocks showed improvement. American Smelters was up ⅜. The curb was dull.

Americans in London sustained an irregular rally, and Canadian Pacific spurted.

Boston Stocks Open Firm.

STATE STREET, Jan. 30.—Midday—The Boston market opened firm but qiet.

Prices of active issues were Franklin 12⅝, unchanged; Superior & Boston 4½, unchanged; Utah Apex 3, unchanged; Isle Royale 21¼, unchanged; Mayflower (25 shares) 9, up ¼; Ojibway 6, unchanged; E. Butte 12½, up ¼; Union Land 2¾.

The lowest price for copper metal learned of to-day was 14 cents cash. Copper slumped in London yesterday, but to-day made a partial recovery. Speculators who bought in October on the basis of the London market have been taking profits.

Cotton Market Steady.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The cotton market opened steady with prices ranging from 1 point up to 1 point off. Sentiment here was also influenced to a considerable extent by the mill situation at Lawrence. After the call, prices were off 1 to 4 points. Futures and spot were steady in Liverpool. There was fair demand there and at noon prices were steady. American mid uplands, 5.57; sales, 10,000; receipts, 49,000; American, 44,600.

Grain Prices Open Lower.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—The whole grain list to-day opened under pressure. Lower cables and bearish Argentine news caused early decline in wheat. The market then rallied. A big run of receipts set corn off. Oats were lower. Provisions were a shade higher.

DIG UP $50,000,000 MORE IN FIRE RUINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Fifty million dollars' worth of securities were removed from the vaults beneath the wreckage of the burned Equitable building to-day. They were taken from the vaults of the Mercantile Safe Deposit Company. Of the securities removed, $48,000,000 belonged to the Emigrants' Bank and the other $2,000,000 to Whitehouse & Co., bankers.

BARN SAVED BY L CAR CREWS

Through the efforts of forty motormen and conductors the large car barn of the Boston Elevated at Lenox street, Roxbury, was saved from destruction by fire to-day. The car men played streams of water on the inside of the building while ten of the men who work in the pits of the barn kept a fire in a mail car under control until the arrival of the fire department.

Srortly after 10 a. m. smoke was seen issuing from the rear of the car barn, and one of the employes sounded the alarm for the volunteer fire fighters, composed of the motormen and conductors and switch tenders. In the meantime the Boston fire department was summoned. The fire started in the mail car, which is used for the night service at the Boston Postoffice and suburban stations. The car was gutted. The damage was $500.

ICE PACK ENDANGERS CAPE COD VESSELS

CHATHAM, Jan. 30.—The forty-mile-an-hour blizzard which raged off Cape Cod all last night abated somewhat to-day although a heavy sea is still running. The storm is the worst that has visited the Cape section this Winter. Two deeply laden five-masted schooners were sighted off Chatham, bound east, and it is thought that to avoid the Cape they will be obliged to work seaward, as they cannot go back over the shoals on account of the ice pack. A large body of heavy ice extends from Chatham southward away out to the Handkerchief Lightship. The channel over the shoals is full of heavy drift ice and the northeaster will cause a heavy pack.

MAN'S BODY FOUND HANGING IN STABLE

The body of Thomas A. Day was found to-day hanging from a beam in the stable of the Boston Ice Company, No. 292 Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, by men who were about to take their teams out for work. Day was fifty-three years old and employed as a stableman. The cause of his suicide could not be ascertained. He slept in the stable and when seen last appeared to be in the best of spirits talking with many of the men with whom he worked. His body was removed to the North Grove street morgue. It is not known whether he had any relatives.

BARON STANMORE, PUBLICIST, IS DEAD

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Arthur Hamilton Gorden, Baron Stanmore, a member of the House of Lords and the author of numerous political pamphlets, died to-day aged eighty-three. Baron Stanmore was formerly Governor of Ceylon, Trinidad and New Zealand.

CAMBRIDGE MAN DIES FROM INJURY

Charles Hunder, thirty years old, of No. 28 Belham street, Cambridgeport, died to-day at the Somerville Hospital from injuries received yesterday afternoon by falling from the third story of a new house on Grant street, Somerville, where he was at work.

STUDEBAKER'S NEW MANAGER

By J. C. KERRISON.

Philip E. Hawley has been appointed manager of the local branch of the Studebaker Corporation. He comes here from Detroit with a knowledge of the motor industry which has been gained through years of experience.

The Studebaker people feel that in Mr. Hawley they have a man whose familiarity with the industry will enable him to maintain their policy of service and satisfaction—the policy which has carried them so rapidly to the front as the greatest manufacturers of automobiles in the world.

Mr. Hawley will have entire charge of the wholesale business in the New England States and brings with him a reputation of real Western aggressiveness and enthusiasm which cannot help but increase the enormous business which the Studebakers already have in this section.

Much interest is being shown in the outcome of the non-stop run by the Warren "30" in San Francisco. This car has already passed the three thousand mile mark, and will endeavor to break the record of 10,000 miles which has been set up. Daily bulletins on the progress of this run are being received at the Motor Vehicle Company on Boylston street and are being eagerly watched.

To the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, belongs credit for the most complete line of aeroplane fabric and tires shown at this year's automobile shows, and at the Chicago show this week the aeroplane tire and fabric exhibit of the company is attracting much attention.

The Goodyear Company was first among American tire manufacturers to reckon with the aeroplane as a coming factor in transportation and make preparations for its arrival.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company's aeroplane tire exhibit includes all the popular sizes. An aeroplane tire is smaller and fatter than its cousin the motor cycle tire and the Goodyear kind, like the Goodyear motor cycle tire, is made like a small automobile tire instead of as a development of the bicycle tire. Aeroplane tires must take terrific strains at times and they must be so made the wrenches will not loosen them from the rims.

BANK CASHIER A SUICIDE.

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 30.—Following the suicide of Joseph W. Miller, cashier of the First National Bank at Kalida, O., the directors of that bank, fearing a run to-day, ordered the institution closed pending a report of the State bank examiner.

TIP
A tip is something that is handed to you—often times a get-rich-quick thing that looks so soft you can't grasp it soon enough. When dealt a straight tip, you're on the inside; well, boys, you're on the inside when we tip that the Lady Buccaneers are at the Howard with the choicest cluster of girls that ever blew in. Always something doing from 1 till 11 at the old Howard.
LADY BUCCANEERS
A laughesque girlesque burlesque—nothing niftier in girl-goods. John Hanson, the Dutch junkster; Madeline Rowe, Josephine Bonnett, Grace Whitman and Gertrude Ralston form a bunch that can't be touched for passing out the salve-stuff. This show is one long laugh. Also a continuous show that tops them all.

TETRAZZINI'S SOLO OPERA HIT

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Tetrazzini appeared at our Opera House last night and sang "The Last Rose of Summer," in English. What do you think of that? She sang it twice, and the tremendous audience rose to it, like the "hoi polloi" at a moving picture theatre.

The unexpected performance of that beautiful melody was only one of a dozen features that illuminated the finest performance of "The Barber of Seville" heard in Boston in recent years.

It is doubtful if anywhere in the world to-day the remarkable cast of last night could be surpassed, or even equalled in this century-old comic opera.

First, there was Tetrazzini to sing Rosina, then there was Constantino, the greatest living Count of Almaviva. Next comes Vanni Marcoux, the new French bass, whose Don Basilio surpassed anything seen here lately, and Fornari, whose thin, smooth baritone is exactly suited to the music of Figaro, the barber. And last, but not least, there was Tavecchio, a buffo who is actually funny, and who can sing the music of Doctor Bartolo.

Century Old Opera.

The "Barber of Seville" was written by Rossini to a libretto adapted from an old French comedy, and was first sung in 1815. It has steadfastly held its place in the repertory of opera houses where great singers are stalled, for it takes great singers to perform the brilliant music of Rossini.

In "The Barber," not only the soprano but the tenor and the baritone, and even the buffo must sing florid music. There is no escape. That is why there are many famous opera houses which never give "The Barber," and the Metropolitan in New York is one. They cannot give it a proper cast.

Its melodies last night sounded as fresh and verdant as ever, and in the face of such brilliant singing the thin and inadequate orchestration passed unnoticed. In Rossini's day they didn't bother much about the orchestra. It was the voices which counted.

"The Last Rose of Summer."

One of the chief reasons for the retention of "The Barber" to the present time is the music lesson scene, because it gives the prima donna a chance to sing her favorite coloratura selection. Rossini wrote music for this scene, but nobody knows where it is, and it has long been the custom for the soprano to select something herself.

Last night Tetrazzini chose Benedict's "Carnival of Venice," a beautiful setting with brilliant variations of an old Italian song.

It was one of Tetrazzini's great nights. Her voice was never more glorious, and her technique more at her command.

Her passage work was positively amazing, and provoked an ovation such as is seldom heard in the Opera House.

Then the lady sprung her surprise. She put on a pair of nose glasses, think of Tetrazzini wearing eye glasses, and opened a sheet of music. The orchestra struck into the prelude to "The Last Rose of Summer."

Then the grand old song was sung as it has not been sung since the days of Patti and the house went wild. Tetrazzini calmed the tumult by a greeing to sing it again, and she sang it a second time just as perfectly.

She did more than sing last night. She proved herself a comedienne of high rank by her dainty and amusing Rosina.

Happy Night for All.

Constantino has sung the Count of Almaviva here many times. His voice was never in better trim for the vocal somersaults, the thrills and the slides that the music required. He shared honors with Tetrazzini for exceptional singing and splendid acting.

And Vanni Marcoux—never was there so amusing a Basilio. He looked like a big, black crow, and his strident basso heightened the illustration. This man is an artist in delivering a song. Despite obvious vocal handicaps he triumphed in his second act aria.

Fornari's best part is Figaro, and he sang it very well. Miss Elvira Leveroni, as Bertha, delivered her aria with fine effect. Tavecchio is inimitable in the role of the jealous old guardian.

The audience simply revelled in the pretty tunes and the fun. It roared with laughter to see Tetrazzini running around the stage with the other singers pelting one another with hats and various missiles, and it got excited over the vocal pyrotechniques of all the singers, just as audiences used to do before they turned grand opera into a series of problem plays with lugubrious music.

AT THE

HENRY F. MILLER

395 BOYLSTON ST.

The only place in Boston where NEW Henry F. Miller pianos can be bought. Other Boston dealers who advertise "Henry F. Miller" pianos have only second-hand ones to show. One of these was advertised recently as "little used," but it proved on investigation to have been in daily use in a music school for nearly twenty-nine years. We gladly give to anybody the exact age of any second-hand "Henry F. Miller" piano upon being furnished its number.

In addition to "Henry F. Miller" pianos, we also show a large and beautiful variety of reliable pianos by other makers which we guarantee are marked at honest prices—$125, $150, $175, $200, $225, $250. Many "canvassers" would ask at least $100 more for any of them. We employ no canvassers; neither do we advance prices if buyers desire easy instalment terms—$10 down and $5 per month. We believe the piano we price at $200 is a better piano than the so-called "four hundred-dollar" piano which is sold under "guessing," "contest" or "certificate" schemes. No matter WHAT price you wish to pay for a piano, you cannot afford not to see and hear our offerings. A call at our warerooms will surely protect you from being overcharged elsewhere.

Most important of all, you have the time-honored reliability and integrity of our house behind every transaction. Established 1863. HENRY F. MILLER & SONS PIANO CO.

STORAGE for pianos at 50c. per month; cartage and boxing at lowest price; refinishing and tuning of pianos at price that we warrant work; we purchase uprights for cash. BLAKE'S, 564 Washington st.

JOSEPH I. STEWART } SAY:
E. J. LEWIS

Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—I have been using your "Apartments to Let" columns exclusively for the past few weeks for Huntington Hall and have received very satisfactory results. Yours truly.

(Signed.) SAM'L ALTMAN, Prop.

Boston American.

Gentlemen:—In renewing the advertisement of my new apartments at 1293 to 1301 Commonwealth Avenue, Allston District, Boston, I wish to say that the advertisement in the American's Apartment Column has produced most satisfactory results.

Not only were the applications numerous, but the class of people who looked at the suites were tenants that I should be proud to have in any apartments operated by me. Yours very truly.

JOSEPH I. STEWART.

Boston American, Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:—For some time past I have been advertising in your paper under the classification of "Apartments to Let." The results I am getting are very satisfactory and profitable.

As all my apartments and suites are located in the best section of the city, the results prove that the American reaches and is read by all those looking for nice apartments. Yours very truly,

E. J. LEWIS.

Old Age on Its Knees Scrubbing

Do You Think That Any SURFACE Reforms Will Straighten Those Tired Old Backs and Give the Workers Relief?

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner

Because of numerous requests, this editorial, printed originally in 1905, is reprinted.

At four o'clock in the morning the elevator moves only rarely in the big office building. A few late workers go about, preparing to end a long day.

At this hour the elevator stops and delivers to her work an old woman past sixty.

She wears a heavy black veil, a plain black dress. Her shoulders are bent and her face tired.

She removes her bonnet and her veil, puts a scrubbing skirt over her black dress.

Then gets her pail, soap and brush.

For many hours, while others are sleeping, and later as the sun is rising, SHE IS ON HER KNEES SCRUBBING.

She goes home in time to get a late breakfast for some children that she is taking care of.

She sleeps just as few hours as she can, then works through the day, without pay, waiting for the hour when she must work, through the most dismal, lonesome hours of the night, for the smallest wage that an old, defenseless woman can be made to accept.

While this old woman scrubs on her knees high up in the office building, an older woman sits on a little stool on the cold corner of the street below selling newspapers.

This old woman in the street is bent almost double. A thin shawl covers her back.

She stoops so much that when you buy a newspaper from her, or put your hand upon her shoulder and give her enough money to take her off the street, she must turn her head sideways to look up and see who it is.

If that old woman with the black veil, coming every morning to scrub, were AN OLD SOLDIER IN HIS UNIFORM—WHAT INDIGNATION WOULD BE AROUSED!

Everybody would say: "It is dreadful that an old soldier should be forced, at that age, to go down on his knees and scrub."

Well, is it not MORE dreadful that an old woman should be submitted to hardship and hard labor that would seem cruelty to a man?

Is not the black bonnet and the black veil of the scrubwoman just as truly the uniform of a brave soldier as any uniform in the world?

That woman has borne children. She has suffered for hours as the soldier suffers only for minutes.

She has worried over sickbeds, put children in their graves, worked for a family and for a husband; put the husband in his grave—giving her pitiful savings in the effort to express loyalty through the undertaker.

Does SHE not deserve respect, or pity, at the very least? Is it not worse to see her in the cold Winter morning going to her work at three o'clock, and scrubbing on her knees for hours, wretchedly paid, receiving for this painful labor barely enough money to keep the roof over her head?

And that old, bent woman on the street, with her hands wrinkled and yellow, is not her life a dreadful reflection upon the heartlessness of what we call civiliaztion?

You may say that charity would take care of her. But she knows only too well that your charity is colder than the wind that blows around her street corner in February.

She would rather stand there, with an occasional kind word from some man or woman who treats her as a human being, than to live on your CHARITY, ticketed, labelled, like some piece of human furniture that can do nothing more except to oblige the community by dying.

It is easy to help either one of these two women, or both of them.

But what are you going to do FOR THE THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS OF OTHERS AS BADLY OFF OR WORSE OFF?

You cannot say to them: "You shall not earn your living in that way," unless you are prepared to give them a better living of another kind.

If you give them money to-day, that does not provide for the years that stretch ahead. AND THEY DO NOT DARE TO GIVE UP THE DAILY CERTAINTY, WITH ITS HARD LABOR.

These two old women present one of the real problems, ONE OF THE DEEP PROBLEMS.

The world has a great deal of work to do before it will be able to treat these women, and the millions of other unfortunate human beings just as unfortunate, as they should be treated.

The trouble with this world is that its laws are made, its plans are made, its battles are fought BY THE POWERFUL.

There are any number of us busy trying to make the well-to-do still better off—trying to give four dollars a day to the three-dollar man.

Before these old women and the thousands of others that are unfortunate—whether old or young—can be helped, there must be more real sympathy in the minds of men for those whom they do not see or talk to.

There must be a revival of that sympathy for the poor which is in all the teachings of Jesus Christ.

THOSE TEACHINGS MUST BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY, and when they are taken seriously, when intelligence and power and wealth are behind the effort to realize them, these two poor old women and those that shall follow them—that are waiting eagerly, even now, to fill their places—will have decent lives, peace and the respect that should go to unfortunate old age.

LOOK AT THIS WIRELESS MY HUSBAND SENT ME FROM THE MORRISANIA: "SHIP DOCKS IN 3 HOURS. DELIGHTED TO BE HOME AGAIN."
WELL WHY DO YOU COME TO ME WITH SUCH GOOD NEWS?
I MET THE MORRISANIA AND THEY TOLD ME MY HUSBAND WAS SEEN TO JUMP OVERBOARD ABOUT 2 MILES DOWN THE BAY!
NO SUICIDE, WATSO, WOULD SEND SUCH A CHEERFUL MESSAGE, NOR WOULD HE JUMP OVERBOARD IN SIGHT OF HOME! COME, LET US GO TO THE DOCKS!
SUICIDE!
AS THIS WAS NO SUICIDE, WATSO, THE MAN MUST HAVE JUMPED OVERBOARD DELIBERATELY, AND IN VIEW OF THE STRONG WIND I DEDUCE THAT HE JUMPED AFTER SOME ARTICLE BLOWN OVER, UNDOUBTEDLY HIS HAT! LET US TAKE A BOAT DOWN THE BAY!
THE WAY YOUR HAT FLIES OFF IN THIS WIND, WATSO, CONFIRMS MY THEORY!
IT'S AN OUTRAGE. I WON'T PAY $5 TO GO TO THE PIER
WELL, $5 ISN'T MUCH FOR PULLING YOU OUT OF THE WATER AND SAVING YOUR LIFE!
THERE'S A MAN, ON THAT TUG, WHO'S BEEN IN THE WATER, WATSO ROW ALONGSIDE!
TIGHTWADDO, YOUR MAD ACT IN JUMPING OFF THE MORRISANIA AFTER YOUR HAT HAS ALMOST SHOCKED YOUR WIFE TO DEATH!
WELL, I WASN'T GOING TO LOSE A HAT I PAID $1.50 FOR IN PARIS!

Little Pu Yi

By PERCY SHAW

OVER the hills to fairy land,
To the royal place, Jehol,
Goes little Pu Yi with sober eye,
Clutching his Manchu doll;
The road is hard, the road is long,
But the palanquin moves fast
From the dragon throne and incense blown
Full with songs of the past.

Over the hills from Nowhere Land,
With the naked lust for power,
Swept an eager horde whose biting sword
Changed the world in an hour.
Little Pu Yi, your kin were there
That day in the ages flown,
They squeezed the land with a hungry hand
And took it for their own.

"Your gods shall pass," the victors said,
"Our Buddha shall hear your prayer;
Ye shall creep and crawl and cringe and fall,
And we shall watch ye there;
Ye shall say the word we bid ye say,
Ye shall praise our baldest wile,
Ye shall hail our place with servile grace
And crave our slightest smile.

Thus they spoke in the long ago
When you were a dream, Pu Yi;
The thing that was done 'twixt sun and sun,
How could it come to die?
Three hundred years to crawl and creep,
Pray, how could the millions stand?
But the gods of brain shook wide their rein
And stirred the palsied hand.

So that which was done 'twixt sun and sun
Has happened again, Pu Yi;
And the dragon chair must shimmer bare,
Food for the vulgar eye,
Over the hills you go, Pu Yi,
To the wondrous place, Jehol;
One will be true as he looks on you—
Your little Manchu doll.

Little Bobbie

He Writes About Family Quarrels

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

I GUESS you & me ain't going for to have any moar arguments, sed Pa to Ma wen he was reeding the paiper last nite. It looks as though the war was over.

I am glad to heer it, sed Ma. I nevver did have any liking for scraps. I am a good deel like my mother, sed Ma, she was a peeceful soul that was always aggenst turmoil. What are we going to do now, my darling husband, to avert bloodshed? Tell me & littel Bobbie.

I have a recipe here in my pocket, sed Pa, if I haven't lost it. It is a clipping that I took out of a newspaper, & the minnit I read it I cuddent go to my knife quick enuff. I cut it out almost beefoar I had read it half thru. Then Ma took the clipping that Pa had handed to her, & she read what was on the clipping.

I see, sed Ma, I see, it is a clipping that tells about Mister Madison Peters, he says here that the only way to preevent quarls in a fambly is for only one to git mad at a time. That is a fine sistem, sed Ma, only one shud git mad at a time.

That is what I was thinking, sed Pa, that is why I brought the clipping hoam to you. Only one mad at a time, what a sublime sentiment. Jest think how quiet that wud maik a good old Irish fambly of ten, Pa sed.

You doant understand the reverent gentelman, sed Ma, this artikel meens that only one of the parents shud git mad at a time, it has no reference to the children. It is a butiful sentiment.

It is a fine sentiment, sed Pa, let's pretend that it is a gaim, & after Bobbie goes to bed you & me will play it. Wich of us is going to git mad first?

Bobbie can stay rite here, sed Ma, he has seen us both mad so offen that he is a littel veteran. I think I wud like to git mad first, sed Ma, if it is all the saim to you. Then the gaim beegan & Ma got mad.

See here, husband, sed Ma, what in the wurld do you mean by telling me that you wud be reddy to pay that C. O. D. to-day. When the poor littel boy had to cum all the way out from Winter street, sed Ma, I had to send him back with the bundel, & it was only twenty dollars' worth of silks.

Yes, my luv, sed Pa.

I nevver seen anything like it in my life, Ma sed. I cant send anything hoam any moar without gitting it sent back. You are the least common provider, sed Ma. I wish I had nevver left my hoam in Colfax. Thare everything was harmony & luxury. Littel did I think in them days, Ma sed, that I wud have to be humiliated in front of a common messenger boy, & it was only twenty dollars.

Yes, my luv, sed Pa.

If it wasent for littel Bobbie, sed Ma, eether you will have to stop playing bilyards & pay my C. O. Ds., or I am going back hoam.

Yes, deerest, Pa sed, yes, yes.

Doant be setting there yessing me all the time, sed Ma. You haven't got any moar backbone than a treetoad. Doant you know how to say No?

If it wasent for littel Bobbie, sed Ma, I wud go back to Colfax this vary minnit. Thare are no brawls in Colfax, sed Ma, everything is happiness thare.

Thare are no C. O. D.s thare, eether, sed Pa.

Thare you go, sed Ma, talking back to me all the time. I thought you promised that you wud let me be the only one to git mad.

Poor Pa, I doant see whare he has a chanst.

Father's Renascence

By N. P. BABCOCK

PRAY do not ask me how 'twas done.
Because I do not know;
But Mr. Bings at sixty-one,
Who had a fresh and frisky son,
Backward began to grow.

While others from the cradle steer
To grave in mother earth,
Old Mr. Bings, it would appear,
Reversed the throttle, changed the gear,
And headed back toward birth.

His whitened hair, his toothless gum
Regained their former state.
"By Jove! but father's going some,"
Said Bings, the younger. Mother, dumb,
Could not ejaculate.

The years rolled on, as years will do,
And mother's lot was sad.
She passed away at eighty-two,
'Twas more than she could bear, to view
Her husband with their lad.

For Father now was thirty-nine,
At which prime age he met
The sportive scion of his line;
And they at some cafe would dine
'Mid fumes of cigarette.

A rather handsome pair they made
And quite like brothers seemed,
But it was son who always paid,
While Dad, now, called a spade a spade,
And on the ladies beamed.

"Of course," remarked the junior Bings,
"I've sown my peck of oats,
I've had my merry little flings,
I've—er—O! well, you know the things."
Then both men cleared their throats.

"I do," said Father, amiably,
"And also know who paid
Your little 'fling,' at twenty-three,
That cost your dear mamma and me
All that I'd ever made.

"Your Western trip, at twenty-eight,
Is also in my mind;
Your mother did not hesitate
To sell her gems. At any rate,
I hope you found us kind.

"You'll meet a test at fifty-eight
When I say twenty pass;
I don't at all begrudge your fate;
I merely say, You'll find it 'great!'
Here, waiter, fill the glass."
